Miscellany.

TO A HOG—ON HIS BIRTH-DAY.

NEVER as yet the unjuſt muſe
(As if by thoſe old precepts bound
Which the ſuperſtitious Jews,)
One line to praiſe a HOG has found.

Never till now, as I remember,
Has any poet ſung a ſwine,
O, Hog! this twentieth of November,
I celebrate—the day is thine.

Three years ago thy little eyes
Peep'd on the day with optics weak;
Three years ago thy infant cries,
By mortal men were call'd a ſqueak.

Then the muſe prophetic ſaw
Thy youthful days, thy latter ſtate,
And ſigh'd at the relentleſs law,
That doom'd thee to an early fate.

Yes, the fond muſe has anxious look'd,
While thou a roaſter, careleſs play'dſt,
Thoughtleſs how ſoon thou might'ſt be cook'd,
(A fine appearance then thou mad'ſt.)

The dangers of a roaſting paſt,
She ſaw thee rear'd a handſome ſhoat;
Saw thee a full-grown hog at laſt,
And heard thee grunt a deeper note.

Thy charms mature with joy ſhe view'd,
As waddling on ſhort legs about,
Or rolling in delicious mud,
Or rooting with ſagacious ſnout.

But thy laſt hour is near at hand;
Before a year, a month, a week,
Is paſt, 'tis Fate's ſevere command,
That death ſhall claim thy lateſt ſqueak.

And this ſhall be thy various doom;
Thou ſhalt be roaſted, fry'd, and boil'd,
Black puddings ſhall thy blood become,
Thy lifeleſs fleſh ſhall pork be ſtyl'd:

Thy ears and feet in ſouſe ſhall lie;
Minc'd ſauſage meat thy guts ſhall cram;
And each plump, pretty, waddling thigh,
Salted and ſmoak'd, ſhall be a ham.

Yet it is fruitleſs to complain:
"Death cuts down all both great and ſmall,"
And hope and fear alike are vain,
To thoſe who by his ſtroke muſt fall.

Full many a hero, young and brave,
Like thee, O Hog! reſign'd his breath;
The noble preſents nature gave,
Form'd but a ſurer mark for death.

Achilles met an early doom;
Euryalus and Niſus young,
Were ſlain; but honour'd was their tomb;
That, Homer, theſe, ſweet Maro ſung.

On the rude cliffs of proud Quebec,
In glory's arm Montgomery dy'd;
And Freedom's genius loves to deck
His early grave with verdant pride.

Nor ſhalt thou want a ſprig of bays
To crown thy name. When ſet agog,
The muſe ſhall tune eccentric lays,
And, pleas'd, IMMORTALIZE A HOG.

LITERARY.

From the Eletick Review.

MEMOIR OF MISS CAROLINE SYMMONS.

THIS ſurpriſing young lady, was the daughter of the Rev. Charles Symmons, D. D. In the blooms of corporeal and mental accompliſhments, ſhe was prematurely ſnatched away at the age of 14—Mr. Wranghain, an Engliſh poet, aſſociates the hiſtory of this uncommonly gifted young female with that of Jarius' daughter. There was, an equality of age, and ſimlarity, no doubt, in the workings of parental grief and filial affection. A ſupernatural reſurrection, like that of Jarius' daughter, was not to be expected. But he, who ſaid "damſel ariſe!" though he ſees fit not to raiſe up departed worth at our ſolicitation and tears, will one day raiſe it up to himſelf.

We tranſcribe ſome of the ingenuous productions of this prodigy of poeſy; and tranſplant from their native, lovely bud, ſome bloſſoms of infant female genius, which would not diſhonour the brow of a veteran of Parnaſſus. The following, it appears, was written when ſhe was but 11 years of age.

THE FLOWER GIRL'S CRY.

"Come buy my wood hare-bells, my cowſlips come buy!
O take my carnation and jeſſamines ſweet:
Leaſt their beauties ſhould wither, their perfumes ſhould die,
All ſnatched like myſelf from their native retreat.

"O ye who in pleaſure and luxury live,
Whoſe boſom would ſink beneath half my ſad woes:
Ah! deign to my cry a kind anſwer to give,
And ſhed a ſoft tear for the fate of poor Roſe.

"Yet once were my days happy, ſweet and ſerene;
And once have I taſted the balm of repoſe;
But now on my cheeks meagre famine is ſeen.
And anguiſh prevails in the boſom of Roſe.

"Then buy my wood hare-bells, my cowſlips come buy!
O take my carnations, and jeſſamines ſweet;
Leaſt their beauties ſhould wither, their perfumes ſhould die,

p. 24.

We ſhall give another ſpecimen, and take our leave of this "gentle ſpirit" with her beautiful lines on "A BLIGHTED ROSE BUD," which were to be, and perhaps have been, inſcribed on her own tomb; an application probably little expected by her at the time of writing them!

ON A BLIGHTED ROSE BUD.

"Scarce had thy velvet lips imbib'd the dew,
And nature hail'd thee infant queen of May;
Scarce ſaw thy op'ning bloom the ſun's broad ray,
And to the air thy tender fragrance threw.

"When the North wind enamoured of thee grew,
And by his cold rude kiſs, thy charms decay.
Now droops thine head, now fades thy bluſhing hue—
No more the queen of flowers, no longer gay.

"So blooms a maid, her guardian's health and joy,
Her mind array'd in innocency's veſt;
When ſuddenly, impatient to deſtroy,
Death claſps the virgin to its iron breaſt;
She fades—the parent, ſiſter, friend deplore,
The charms and budding virtues now no more."

p. 22.

The following little anecdotes deſerve mention, as evincing the force of her attachment to poetical purſuits. She declared there was no perſonal ſacrifice or form, however prized by her ſex, which ſhe would not make, to have been the author of L'Allegro and Penſeroſo. And one morning when returning home from undergoing a very painful operation, by Ware, the oculiſt; and when, in conſequence, ſome apprehenſion was entertained of her loſs of an eye, ſhe declared with a ſmile, that, to be a Milton, ſhe would conſent to be deprived like him of both eyes. Fervent as was her thirſt for poetical excellence, we are happy to find that it did not impair her inclination for religious exerciſes. On this view of her character, Mr. W. throws a cheering light in the following paragraph.

"Not leſs remarkable than the beauties of her perſon, the elegance of her taſte, the ſtrength of her underſtanding, and the goodneſs of her heart, was her ſteadfaſt and humble piety. Through the whole of her illneſs, ſhe was conſtant in her devotions; and when the extreme weakneſs and emaciation, occaſioned by her malady, made the poſture of kneeling (long painful) at length impracticable, ſhe deeply regretted the circumſtance, as diſqualifying her for offering her adoration in a ſuitable manner. With ſuch a diſpoſition, it will not be matter of ſurpriſe that her behaviour, at all times exemplary, in the hours immediately preceding her diſſolution ſhould have been admirable. Not a ſingle complaint fell from her lips. Even on the laſt morning of her earthly exiſtence, when ſhe had expreſſed to her maid a wiſh to die, ſhe inſtantly corrected herſelf, and ſaid, "No, it is ſinful to wiſh for death, I will not wiſh for it."

From the Raleigh (N. C.) Register.

PATSEY REAVES, a widow woman, who lives near the Apalachian Mountain, declared, that on the 31ſt July laſt, about, ſix o'clock P. M. her daughter Elizabeth, about 8 years old, was in the Cottonfield, about 10 poles from the dwelling houſe, which ſtands by computation 6 furlongs from the Chimney Mountain, and that Elizabeth told her brother Morgan, aged 11 years, that there was a man on the mountain.—Morgan was incredulous at firſt; but the little girl affirmed it, and ſaid ſhe ſaw him rolling rocks or picking up ſticks, adding that ſhe ſaw a heap of people. Morgan then went to the place where ſhe was, and calling out ſaid that he ſaw a thouſand or ten thouſand things flying in the air. On which Polly, daughter of Mrs. Reaves, aged 14 years, and a negro woman, ran to the children and called to Mrs. Reaves to come and ſee what a ſight yonder was. Mrs. Reaves ſays, ſhe went about 8 poles towards them, and without any ſenſible alarm or fright, ſhe turned towards the Chimney Mountain, and diſcovered a very numerous crowd of beings reſembling the human ſpecies; but could not diſcern any particular members of the human body, nor diſtinction of ſexes; that they were of every ſize, from the talleſt men down to the leaſt infants; that there were more of the ſmall than of the full grown, that they were all clad with brilliant white raiment, but could not deſcribe any form of their raiment; that they appeared to riſe off the ſide of a mountain ſouth of ſaid rock, and about as high, that a conſiderable part of the mountain's top was viſible above this ſhining hoſt; that they moved in a northern direction and collected about the top of the Chimney rock. When all but a few had reached ſaid rock, two ſeemed to riſe together, and behind them about two feet a third roſe. Theſe three moved with great agility towards the crowd, and had the neareſt reſemblance to men of any before ſeen. While beholding thoſe three, her eyes were attracted by three more riſing nearly from the ſame place, and moving ſwiftly in the ſame order and direction after theſe, ſeveral others roſe and went towards the rock.

During this view, which all the ſpectators thought laſted upwards of an hour, ſhe ſent for Mr. Robert Siercy, who did not come at firſt; on a ſecond meſſage ſent about 15 minutes after the firſt, Mr. Siercy came; and being now before us, he gives the following relation, to the ſubſtance of which Mrs. Reaves agrees.

Mr. Siercy ſaid, when he was coming, he expected to ſee nothing extraordinary, and when come, being aſked if he ſaw thoſe people on the mountain, he anſwered no; but looking a ſecond time, he ſaid he ſaw more glittering white appearances of human kind, than ever he had ſeen of men at any general review; that they were of all ſizes from that of men to infants; that they moved in throngs round a large rock, not far from the Chimney rock; they were about the height of the Chimney rock and moved in a ſemicircular courſe, between him and the rock, and ſo paſſed along in a ſouthern courſe between him and the mountain, to the place where Mrs. Reaves ſaid they roſe; and that two of a full ſize went before the general crowd about the ſpace of 20 yards; and as they reſpectively came to this place, they vaniſhed out of ſight, leaving a ſolemn and pleaſing impreſſion on the mind, accompanied with a diminution of bodily ſtrength.

Whether the above be accountable on philoſophical principles, or whether it be a prelude to the deſcent of the Holy City, I leave to the impartially curious to judge.

GEORGE NEWTON.

P. S. The above ſubſcriber has been informed, that on the ſame evening, and about the ſame time in which the above phenomenon appeared, there was ſeen by a gentleman of character, who was ſeveral miles diſtant from the place, a bright rainbow apparently near the Sun, then in the weſt, where there was no appearance of either clouds or rain; but a haze in the atmoſphere. The public are therefore at liberty to judge, whether the phenomenon had any thing ſupernatural in it, or whether it was ſome unuſual exhalation of moiſt vapour from the ſide of the mountain, which exhibited ſuch an unuſual rainbow.

Method of cleaning ſilk, woollen and cotton goods, without damage to the texture or colour.

GRATE raw potatoes to a fine pulp in clean water, and paſs the liquid matter through a courſe ſieve into another veſſel of water; let the mixture ſtand till the fine white particles of the potatoes are precipitated, then pour the mucilaginous liquor from the fecula, and preſerve the liquor for uſe. The article to be cleaned ſhould then be laid on a linen cloth, on a table; and having provided a clean ſponge, dip it in the potatoe liquor, and apply it to the article to be cleaned, till the dirt is perfectly ſeparated, then waſh it in clean water ſeveral times. Two middle-ſized potatoes will be ſufficient for a pint of water. The white fecula will anſwer the purpoſe of tapioca, and make an uſeful, nouriſhing food with ſoup or milk, or ſerve to make ſtarch and hair-powder. The coarſe pulp that does not paſs the ſieve, is of great uſe in cleaning worſted curtains, tapeſtry, carpets or other coarſe goods. The mucilaginous liquor will clean all ſorts of ſilk, cotton or woollen goods, without hurting or ſpoiling the colour; it is alſo uſed in cleaning old paintings, or furniture that is ſoiled. Dirty painted wainſcots may be cleaned by wetting a ſponge in the liquor, then dipping it in a little clean ſand, and afterwards rubbing the wainſcot with it.

OTTO OF ROSES.

THE produce of Attar or Eſſential Oil of Roſes, obtained at the new plantation and manufactory, at Wandſworth, is ſtated by the reverend Mr. Butcher, at 2 oz. 2 drms. from 100 buſhels or 600 lb. of roſes. This produce, if genuine, greatly exceeds any obtained from the moſt ſucceſsful operations in India. Col. Polier, who, ſome years ſince, had 13 acres under roſes, never obtained more than 2 drms. per 400 lb. of flowers.—In many parts of Aſia the raſpings of ſandalwood, and in others (in Caſhmire particularly) ſweet ſcented graſs are uſed to increaſe the quantity of Attar; but it is, conſequently, leſs pure. The Attar, or Otto, is the cream, or ſcum, which floats on the roſe-water when it cools after diſtillation.

A part of the crew of the French ſhip L'Impeteaux, deſtroyed on Currituck, have arrived from Norfolk, and are on board the L'Patriot and L'Eole.

By a letter received by a merchant of the firſt reſpectability in this city from New-York, we are informed, that accounts had been received in that city, from Liverpool down to the 12th of Auguſt, which gave no credit to the "rumors of PEACE."

E. Poſt.

EXTRACT.

Miſſiſſippi Territory, Auguſt 18.

"Governor Claiborne was here all laſt week, and being called by expreſs, left Natches yeſterday morning. The Spaniſh party that had been ſent to ſtop our exploring party (under Freeman) had arrived at the Cado towns on the Red River 20 days after our party had paſſed the ſame place, and finding the American flag flying there, cut it down and rebuked the Indians for ſuffering it to be ſet up, or us to enter the Spaniſh territory. The Cado chief replied, that the Cados were an independent people, and the Americans their friends, and they would protect them.

"The Spaniards ſet off in purſuit of our party up the Red River, but they had got 150 or 200 miles in advance of them; 600 Spaniſh cavalry had arrived at the Sabine and croſſed, poſſeſſed themſelves of the poſt from which captain Turner had driven them laſt ſpring. This circumſtance required the preſence of the governor to call out the militia, which he had been organizing for ſome previous time.

"An old ſoldier from the Apluſia country, who paſſed here to-day, met gov. Claiborne yeſterday 20 miles beyond the Miſſiſſippi, he had tired one horſe and had got another and proceeded rapidly on his journey. Before he left the Apluſia, the militia there had been called out to aid the regular troops, and the ſpirit of the people was very much roufed. Col. Cuſhing had determined to fight the Spaniards who had croſſed the Sabine. The troops under his command at Natchitoches may be about 500 regulars; the militia of this territory are ordered to be in readineſs.

"The ſoldier reports from Apluſia, that 2000 more Spaniards were on their way to the Sabine, with 500 mules, laden with proviſions, &c. This, if true, will make a force ſuperior in number to our regulars; and ſome entertain doubts, tho' I do not, of the attachment of the militia on the other ſide. In this territory we can without difficulty have 700 or 1000 volunteers at a few hours notice, and whoſe activity will render them fit for immediate ſervice. At any rate, if the Spaniards do but come down, we ſhall be able to give a good account of them. The Spaniards report, that they mean to occupy all the Louiſiana country, and ſay they have emiſſaries in the U. States." [Aurora.]

Another letter, dated 25th Auguſt.

"Since my former letter, another expreſs arrived from Fort Adams, from Natchitoches, adviſing that the Spaniſh forces had arrived within 20 miles of that poſt, and that all the troops at Fort Adams were ordered to march to the aſſiſtance of the garriſon at Natchitoches, which expected to be attacked before they could arrive there. Advices from Loftus Heights, from an authentic ſource, confirm theſe accounts, and add that all the troops were to march from the heights the day before yeſterday; that poſt will be left in charge of an officer and a ſtrong militia body, to guard 3000 ſtand of arms and 30 pieces of cannon, which our government prudently placed here long ago as a proviſion againſt exigencies.

"Gen. Wilkinſon has not yet come down the river. Col. Cuſhing, who is ſaid to be an able officer, commands at Natchitoches, but united with the force from Fort Adams, will hardly exceed 700 men; the Spaniards have 900 horſe and 2000 infantry near the Sabine. So that our American metal will be now tried, and our enterpriſe and intrepidity will have both a fair opportunity for exertion and for giving a ſtriking example to theſe unjuſtifiable violators of treaties.

"This territory contains 5 militia regiments, the eldeſt commanding officer is col. Ozman; if called into ſervice, we ſhall want two brigadiers and a major-general, which no doubt the preſident will make." [Ibid.]

The following account of an extraordinary darkneſs which occurred on the coaſt of Newfoundland, the 17th of June, is extracted from the London Magazine.

"On my paſſage to this place (Miramichi) an extraordinary circumſtance occurred, which I believe muſt have been ſeen in ſome parts of Newfoundland, though the people here ſaw nothing of it. I was about 2 leagues to the northward of the Iſland of St. Peter; at day break it was dark and gloomy, the ſun roſe like a ball of fire, and diſappeared in an inſtant, in thick, dark, red and yellow clouds; and at 8 o'clock I could ſcarcely ſee to get my breakfaſt without a light; at intervals it lightened up a little, and continued ſo till 11 o'clock, when it became totally dark, ſo much ſo, that I put my head down to the binacle, and could no more ſee the compaſs than I could at 12 o'clock in a very dark night, without a light; my cook was obliged to get a light to ſee if his copper boiled. The fire burned pale, or rather of a purple caſt. It continued totally dark for about 20 minutes, when it cleared away, firſt to the northward. The Iſland of St. Peter looked juſt as the land does in the night, when the moon emerges from a thick black cloud, which hangs over the land, a yard or two of clear ſky (to appearance) between the land and clouds, and all round the horizon beſides as dark as pitch. The clouds all the day were of a blood red and yellow colour, no rain but a little wind from the N. N. W. My people were frightned—it was a grand, but awful ſight." H. BRISTOW.

Note. The 16th was the day of the eclipſe of the Sun.

CINCINNATI, (Ohio) September 2.

Juſt as our paper was going to preſs, we were informed by a gentleman of reſpectability, that captain Sparks with a number of men, was taken by a party of Spaniards, and that colonel Cuſhing, from Nachitoches, had been diſpatched after them.

NEW-YORK, September 25.

A letter from Curracoa of the 27th Auguſt, ſays, "Miranda is at Aruba."

PHILADELPHIA, September 25.

ATTEMPT ON THE MAIL.—A daring attempt to rob the mail between New-York and this city was made on Tueſday night laſt, by a gang of villains, with whom there is every reaſon to believe the driver was in league—By the ſpirited exertions of the paſſengers one of the villains, together with the driver was ſecured and committed to the cuſtody of a magiſtrate.

The London packet, about the 23d of Auguſt fell in with and was boarded by the Veteran, commanded by Jerome Buonaparte, ſteering for Europe.

One of our London papers ſays, "We are happy to inform our readers, that after this day (1ſt Auguſt) no new veſſel, or veſſel which has not been employd during her laſt voyage in the ſlave trade, will be allowed, by law, to clear out at any of our cuſtom-houſes for the coaſts of Africa, for ſlaves."

September 27.

The London Packet, captain M'Dougall, left Torbay the 3d, and Lands end the 6th of Auguſt. Auguſt 19, was boarded by the French ſhip Veteran, of 74 guns, commanded by Jerome Buonaparte, and treated politely. Next day ſpoke ſhip Mary, of N. York, from Norfolk, for Antwerp, out 23 days; informed us, that the day before, he came paſt two Engliſh ſhips on fire, and had taken up three of their boats; one of them belonged to London, and the other to Tignmouth.—Auguſt 28, was boarded by the Engliſh ſloop of war Echo, having three cutters in co. with her, looking out for Jerome Buonaparte; after receiving information that I had been boarded by him, ſhe ſteered for England. Sept. 18, in lat. 38, 40, long. 72, was boarded by the Engliſh ſloop of war Squirrel, from Halifax, bound to cruiſe off the Cheſapeake.

NORFOLK, September 20.

The officers of his Imperial majeſty's ſhip of the line, L'Impeteaux, which againſt the law of nations (having up the flag of diſtreſs, and on ſhore on the coaſt of the United States) was fired at and afterwards ſet on fire by two ſhips of the line and a frigate of his Britannic majeſty, do expreſs publicly their gratitude to the inhabitants of the United States, for their generous conduct and care they have ſhewn to the diſtreſſed men who ſwam from the French ſhip.—This conduct, Americans, is conformable to the principles of civilized nations, and will prove to the Old World the high opinion we had conceived of the hoſpitality of this New World.

BALTIMORE, September 25.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman, dated Natchez, 25th Auguſt, 1806, to his brother in this city.

"I expect you have by this time heard of a diſturbance that has taken place on the other ſide of the river. About 800 Spaniards, and 3 or 400 Indians have taken a ſtand within 5 miles of Natchitoches, where there is a conſiderable number of Americans (perhaps nearly equal) and out of the 5 companies at Ft. Adams, 3 are ordered over there immediately. The governor (Claiborne) is gone over there either to make peace or war. There is little doubt with me from all accounts, but that our troops will be attacked before you receive this, as I have underſtood the commanding officer has long ago had poſitive orders to drive them on the other ſide the Sabine, ſhould they come over on this ſide. The militia of that country are generally volunteers, and there is a conſiderable ſtir here in the muſtering way ſince the expreſs arrived, which was about 10 days ago."

September 29.

The French frigate La Guerriere, mounting 50 guns and 317 men, was captured on the 19th of July, in lat. 62, off the Ferro Iſlands, by the Engliſh frigate Blanche, of 38 guns, after a ſharp conteſt of 45 minutes. The Blanche had only four men wounded; the Guerriere had 30 wounded and 20 killed.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS it has been ſtated to me by the petition of a number of reſpectable perſons, inhabitants of Prince-George's county, that a murder has been committed on the perſon of CHARLES NEVITT, junior, late of Prince-Georges county, by a certain negro man, ſlave of Baſil Soper, called WALL, who has ſince abſconded and fled from juſtice: And whereas it is the duty of the executive to guard as much as may be againſt the commiſſion of ſuch enormities, and to bring ſuch offenders againſt the laws and peace of ſociety to juſtice, I have therefore thought proper to iſſue this my proclamation, and do, by and with the advice and conſent of the council, offer a reward of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS to any perſon or perſons who ſhall apprehend and ſecure the ſaid negro WALL in any gaol in the United States, ſo that he be brought to juſtice.

One Hundred & Fifty Dollars Reward.

RAN away, on the firſt of July, 1806, from the ſubſcriber, living in Anne-Arundel county, Patapſco Neck, near Hawkins's Point, within ten miles of Baltimore, Maryland, a likely young negro man named BOB, but ſometimes calls himſelf BOB MILLER; is a tolerably black, ſtraight made fellow, with a ſmiling countenance when ſpoken to, has a remarkable ſcar on the lower part of the back of his neck, near the ſize of a cent, under his ſhirt collar; he was raiſed to the farming buſineſs, he is in the twenty-fourth year of his age, about five feet nine or ten inches high; had on when he went off, a high crown felt hat, with a band and buckle, an over round coat, deep blue mixed ſtrong cloth doubled at each elbow, and the left ſhoulder, oſnabrig ſhirt, and hempen linen trouſers. I expect he will change his name and cloaths, as he did when he ran off before, he changed his name to NICHOLAS JOHNSON. I preſume he has procured a forged paſs from his infamous connexions in the neighbourhood where he lived. If taken up and ſecured in any gaol, ſo that I get him again, ſhall receive one hundred dollars, if out of the ſtate the above reward, and reaſonable travelling expences paid, if brought home, by SELECTED.

FROM THE WEEKLY INSPECTOR.

The following are among the happieſt effuſions of the celebrated tranſlator of Anacreon. The alliteration in the laſt line of the firſt ſtanza, is eaſy and unaffected. In the laſt line of the ſecond ſtanza the ſound is beautifully imitative of the ſenſe, and all the images are rural, chaſte, and deſcriptive.

BALLAD STANZAS.

I KNEW by the ſmoke, that ſo gracefully curl'd
Above the green elms, that a cottage was near,
And I ſaid, "If there's peace to be found in the world,
"A heart that was humble might hope for it here!"

It was noon, and on flowers that languiſh'd around
In ſilence repoſ'd the voluptuous bee;
Every leaf was at reſt, and I heard not a ſound
But the wood-pecker tapping the hollow beach-tree.

And "Here in this lone little wood," I exclaim'd,
"With a maid who was lovely to ſoul and to eye,
"Who would bluſh when I praiſ'd her, and weep when I blam'd,
"How bleſt could I live, and how calm could I die!

"By the ſhade of yon ſumac, whoſe red-berry dips,
"In the guſh of the fountain, how ſweet to recline,
"And to know, that I ſigh'd upon innocent lips,
"Which had never been ſigh'd on by any but mine!"

THE WRECKED SEA-BOY.

HE ſilent ſtands, and marks each riſing wave,
That rudely daſhes on the level ſtrand;
And weeps to view the ſhatter'd bark they leave,
That bore him hither from his native land.

Or wet and ſhiv'ring on the rocky height,
Some flattering cloud deceives his eager eye;
But e'en th' illuſion is obſcured by night,
Fades with the glimmer in the weſtern ſky.

Nor drown'd his cry; he walks upon the ſhore,
Till faint and weary on the ſand reclin'd
He ſits him down to liſt the ſurges roar,
That roll tumultuous on his troubled mind.

Chill blows the air, now only fancy ſees,
And the dew mingles with the wretch's tears;
Shrill whiſtles through the hulk the breeze,
While mid the parting clouds the moon appears.

To her pale luſtre lifts his ſparkling eye,
The ſcene conveys a ſorrowful delight;
For there, he thinks, perhaps, and heaves a ſigh,
His wearied ſpirit ſoon may take its flight.

Ah! why did man e'er truſt the fickle wave,
Preſumptuous o'er the trackleſs ocean roam,
Sure ev'ry bleſſing nature meant, ſhe gave,
Enough for life is ſurely found at home.

Thoſe rays that ſhine upon his dew wet cheek,
May mildly beam on her acroſs the main.
Who walks the cliff, with fond expectance ſeek
In every whitening ſail his bark again.

Far, far away, the ſea-boy yields his breath,
Unſeen, unheard upon the cheerleſs iſle,
No friend to ſooth the agonies of death,
Or give the conſolation of a ſmile.

No ſtranger viſits there the way worn beach,
There e'en the ſavage foot neglects to ſtray.
No ſound ſalutes him ſave the Oſpray's ſcreech,
In wild contention hov'ring o'er his prey.

WHICH have within ſeven years paſt cured upwards of one hundred thouſand perſons of both ſexes, of every age and in every ſituation, of various dangerous complaints, ariſing from WORMS, and from obſtructions or foulneſs in the ſtomach and bowels:—

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of ſimilar title, ſo commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary, the particular excellence of this remedy is its being ſuited to every age and conſtitution; contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent, and is ſo mild in its operation that it cannot injure the moſt delicate pregnant lady, or the tendereſt infant of a week old, ſhould no worms exiſt in the body; but will, without pain or griping, cleanſe the ſtomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offenſive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal diſorders. They are particularly efficacious in carrying off all groſs humours and eruptions; feveriſh and bilious complaints, and are the ſafeſt and mildeſt purgative that can be uſed on any occaſion.

Alſo may be had,

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1806.

Foreign Intelligence.

NEW-YORK, October 4.

BY the ſhip Eliza, from Liverpool, and the Science, capt. Howard, from London, London papers to the 16th of Auguſt are received.

The proſpect of Peace, it will be perceived, is not ſo flattering as the reports we had for ſome time paſt been in the habit of receiving would have inclined us to ſuppoſe. On this ſubject, intereſting not only to the belligerent parties, but to the whole civilized world, and eſpecially to our own country, we have been favoured with the following extracts from letters, of a date ſubſequent to any printed accounts:

LIVERPOOL, Auguſt 17.

"A meſſenger has arrived from our ambaſſador at Paris. The intelligence by him is underſtood to be ſuch, that the proſpects of peace are materially leſſened.—Probably the French government, having concluded a ſeparate peace with Ruſſia, have riſen in their demands. The funds have in conſequence experienced a conſiderable decline."

"We were yeſterday upon the point of diſpatching the annexed prices current, when we received advices through the public prints and private letters that lord Lauderdale was upon his return from Paris without effecting the object of his miſſion. The accounts this morning neither abſolutely contradict nor confirm this ſtatement; the whole reſts upon the depreſſion of the public funds, which in omnium is a reduction of full 4 per cent."

To the laſt letter is added as a poſtcript, under date of the 18th, "The accounts of this morning correſpond with thoſe of yeſterday."

Mr. Fox was rapidly advancing in a ſtate of convaleſcence, and had been able to devote a portion of his time to his official duties. His phyſicians had encouraged his family and friends with the hope of his being out of danger.

Capt. Howard informs us that, in conſequence of diſpatches recently received, Mr. Munroe would poſtpone his return to America until the enſuing ſpring; and that the time of Mr. Erſkine's departure on his embaſſy to the government of the United States was not fixed upon.

LONDON, Auguſt 8.

The Hibernia, 110 guns, admiral Earl St. Vincents has been fitted and proviſioned from home for 8 months. His lordſhip is going into the Mediterranean, accompanied by a ſelect ſquadron; and it is expected, that vice admiral Duckworth will take the command of the channel fleet.

Earl Moira attends at Mr. Fox's office, and tranſacts buſineſs for him.

The French frigate Le Rhine, of 44 guns, has ſhared the fate of La Guerriere: a telegraphic diſpatch was yeſterday received at the admiralty, ſtating, that ſhe had arrived at Plymouth, a prize to the Mars, captain Oliver.

Yeſterday the ſignal was made for the expedition at Spithead to get under way; but the wind coming round to the weſtward, it was ſoon after annulled. The veſſels that ſailed from the Downs have alſo been obliged to put back, in conſequence of the wind.

It is reported, that a grand fete now preparing at Paris, or when a general peace is proclaimed, Buonaparte intends to announce his nomination of ſeveral hundreds of his ſubjects to be dukes, marquiſes, counts and barons. Among theſe will be ſome of the ancient French nobility. Among the members of his family he has alſo reſolved to revive the titles of duke of Orleans, princeſs of Conde and Conti, &c.

Auguſt 11.

Though nothing has yet tranſpired with reſpect to the terms of the peace between Ruſſia and France, yet they are reported to be nearly as follows:

The Ruſſians to evacuate Cattaro, and ſeparate themſelves from the Montenegrins.

The French to evacuate Raguſa, which ſhall again be placed under the protection of the Porte.

The Porte guaranteed in the integrity of its dominions.

France promiſes, within a certain time after the evacuation of Cattaro, to withdraw her troops from Germany.

Ruſſia to uſe her good offices to reſtore peace between England and France, and to accommodate the differences between Pruſſia and Sweden.

Nothing is ſaid with reſpect to the king of Naples, who, if the above ſketch be correct, is left to his fate!

The new act of confederation was received by the arch chancellor on the 24th, and was immediately to be laid before the Diet. In the mean-time French troops are taking poſitions for the purpoſe of preventing all oppoſition to the execution of the act of confederacy. A great camp is to be formed near Ratisbon, and Germany will not be evacuated till the work of treaſon, by which ſo many members of the empire are to throw off all allegiance to the head of the empire, has been conſummated.

It has been agreed between the Auſtrian government and the French ambaſſador, that nothing further ſhall be done with reſpect to Cattaro till the arrival of a declaration from Paris. Cattaro is in the hands of the Montenegrins, who are repreſented as increaſing in force, and laying waſte the whole country with fire and ſword. The French are repreſented as being ſhut up in Raguſa, but the accounts received by the Paris papers, which arrived on Friday, are of a later date than thoſe brought by the mails.

Auguſt 12.

The intelligence of peace having been ſigned with Ruſſia, was received with the greateſt ſurpriſe in every part of Germany, for the movements which the troops had begun to make ſeemed rather to announce preparations for war—we can hardly believe that the ſketch of the terms of the treaty brought by the mails yeſterday were correct—ſome of the principal ſtipulations ſeem to have been omitted.—It is obvious, however, that Germany has been abandoned to her fate, and that Buonaparte is to parcel it out, and new caſt and model it according to his pleaſure.

Auguſt 13.

The deſcent upon the coaſt of Calabria is mentioned in a letter from Naples of the 11th ult. Inſtead of 10,000 Britiſh troops having landed, there were only a few troops with 600 galley ſlaves. They landed on the 4th, but returned ſoon to their ſhips, compelled, as the letter ſays, by gen. Verdier, to embark. It is probable that they meant merely to make a diverſion, in which they ſucceeded. The French, it is obvious, had no victory to boaſt of.

Auguſt 14.

Earl St. Vincent has left the channel fleet and ſailed to the ſouthward in the Hibernia, with the Defiance and ſome ſmaller ſhips. He will firſt proceed to Liſbon, but we can hardly believe for the purpoſe mentioned a day or two ago, of taking on board the prince of Brazil. He would not deſert his kingdom till the laſt extremity. But the Liſbon mail which arrived this morning, juſtified us in entertaining a ſuſpicion that ſome expedition is intended againſt Portugal. This is underſtood to be one of the menaces which Buonaparte holds out againſt this country in order to induce us to ſubſcribe to certain terms.

The anxiouſly expected meſſenger is at length arrived. At 3 o'clock yeſterday afternoon the Veſtal frigate came into Deal, and landed Mr. Baſilico, with diſpatches from the earl of Lauderdale, who immediately ſet off for town, where he arrived at Mr. Fox's office about 2 o'clock this morning.

A cabinet council was held upon the diſpatches this morning, and it is ſaid that a meſſenger is to be diſpatched to Paris this evening. Of the nature of the diſpatches we cannot be ſuppoſed to be informed. It is natural however to believe that they are of the higheſt importance. It is rumoured that lord Lauderdale reached Paris on Tueſday morning, having remained ſome hours at Amiens to take a little reſt. Upon his arrival at Paris, he immediately announced his arrival to M. Talleyrand, and had a long conference with the earl of Yarmouth. We believe he proceeded as ſoon as he reached Paris to the hotel where lord Yarmouth reſides, which is ſaid to be the Hotel des Etrangeres, upon the Boulewards.

The following is ſaid to be the cauſe of his lordſhip having delayed diſpatching Baſilico for ſo many days after his arrival. As we have already mentioned, lord Lauderdale, immediately upon reaching Paris, announced his arrival to Talleyrand, who is rumoured to have returned for anſwer, "that buſineſs which could not be deferred, would occupy his whole time for two or three days during which he could not have the pleaſure of ſeeing his lordſhip." It is reported, how truly we know not, that he had no interview with Talleyrand before Saturday or Sunday.

The arrival of the meſſenger has produced a riſe in the funds. Omnium has riſen about ½ per cent. a riſe not ſufficiently great to warrant an inference that the diſpatches are deciſively favourable. As there had been a report that lord Lauderdale was on his return the riſe may be attributed principally, if not wholly, to the knowledge that that rumour is untrue, and that his lordſhip remains at Paris.

The 2d, or queen's dragoons, have been ſuddenly ordered to embark for foreign ſervice. They arrived at Plymouth on Tueſday by forced marches, and are to embark, it is ſaid diſmounted, on board the Malta, 84, and ſome large coppered tranſports hourly expected from the eaſtern ports.

At the council held yeſterday at the queen's houſe, parliament was further prorogued from the 28th inſt. to the 9th of October. But this parliament will, it is reported, never meet again. A diſſolution is ſaid to be intended in September.

American Intelligence.

SALEM, September 26.

Captain George Ropes, from Rotterdam, the 25th of July, mentions the prevalent expectation of peace there. Reſpecting their new king, as far as he had an opportunity to obſerve, he thought a majority of the Dutch-men were in favour of him, particularly the old Orange party, who probably rejoice even at ſuch a ſtop to the wheel of revolution.

We hear that general Lincoln has ſent in his reſignation of the office of collector for the port of Boſton. Gen. Dearborn is ſpoken of as his probable ſucceſſor.

The Tuniſian ambaſſador (who remains wind-bound at Marblehead) made a viſit to this town on Wedneſday forenoon, with his ſuite, and on his return partook of a public dinner provided for him by the gentlemen of Marblehead.

BOSTON, September 27.

The Bomb-Ketches Ætna, lieut. Jones; and Veſuvius, lieut. Leonard; with gun-boats No. 11, lieut. Bainbridge, No. 12, lieut. Dexter, now lying in this harbour will, we are told, ſail on Monday next, for New-Orleans.

September 29.

The ſchooner Venus, captain Allen, freighted by Mr. J. Carrere, of Baltimore, arrived here on Saturday, was taken on her paſſage from Baltimore, to Bourdeaux, and carried into Halifax. It appeared that ſome papers were found concealed in the head of a caſk, belonging to the cargo of the ſaid ſchooner, marked No. 36, which papers were referred to in a letter found among the papers of the ſaid ſchooner, written with ſympathetic ink and ſigned "JOHN CARRERE;" and on the trial the papers ſo ſaid to be found ſecreted were produced in court. The judge having heard counſel on boht ſides, decreed that the ſaid ſchooner ſhould be reſtored to the claimants, and further decreed, that the whole of the cargo, except the captain's private adventure, ſhould be condemned on the ground of the papers having been concealed by the ſaid John Carrere, and the owners of the ſchooner ſhould be paid the freight of the cargo.

NEW-YORK, September 29.

Captain Slocum, of the ſloop Semiramis, from Charleſton, informs, that on Sunday, the 21ſt inſt. off the Capes of Virginia, he fell in with ſir John Borlaſe Warren's ſquadron, conſiſting of the following ſhips, viz. Foudroyant, Courageux, Namur, Ramilies, Fame, Hero, and Amazon frigate.

October 2.

Captain Ledlie, who was ſent by Miranda to Jamaica to ſolicit aſſiſtance from the government of that iſland, ſailed from Port-Royal on the 24th of Auguſt in the Ferret brig, having been ſucceſsful in his application.

Letters are received in town which mention, that Miranda was ſtill at Aruba, exerciſing his men and iſſuing proclamations.

Captain Dowdall, from Cadiz, informs, that news of peace had been received there, and rejoicings had taken place—but on the day before he ſailed, an expreſs arrived from England with advices that the negotiations had been broken off! This report occaſioned a fall of the ſtocks of 7 per cent.

PHILADELPHIA, September 30.

A letter from New York, ſtates, that in the ſhip Columbus, captain Clifton, arrived here on Thurſday from Cadiz, came paſſenger, an officer belonging to a Spaniſh regiment of dragoons, who informs, that his regiment was embarked and would ſail the firſt opportunity for Louiſiana, which country his government intended to reſume.

October 2.

Captain Luce, of the ſchooner Packet, late from Boſton, informs, that on Saturday, ten leagues E. from Cape May, at 8, A. M. ſaw two large ſhips, apparently frigates, from all appearance had been engaged, one of which had loſt the head of her mainmaſt, and her ſails, which were then ſet, were in a ſhattered condition, ſuppoſed to be from ſhot—tho' in that crippled ſtate, was purſuing the other which was making off.

It is generally underſtood that one of the threats held out by Buonaparte during the preſent negotiation, has been, that if G. Britain would not conſent to a peace, he would invade Portugal, and either annex it to his dominions or beſtow it on one of his relations. [London pap.]

A letter, ſays the New-York Evening Poſt of October 1, has been received from Boſton this morning, informing, that it had been diſcovered that the treaty between France and Ruſſia contemplated a diviſion of the Ottoman empire between them, in conſequence of which England had determined to continue the war at every hazard.

NEW-LONDON, October 1.

The New-York Commercial Advertiser says—"From arrivals recently received, we have been induced to believe, that powerful efforts will soon be "made to sever the Western States from the Union, "connect them with Louisiana, and form the whole "into a distinct empire, with col. BURR at its head."

A Duel was fought, near Fort Adams, on the 20th of August, between Nathaniel Evans, Esq. and capt. Richmond, of the U. S. army, in which the latter was shot dead.

PHILADELPHIA, October 2.

Yesterday afternoon came up from Marcus Hook, where she had lain for sometime, the French frigate Valareux of 32 guns. When opposite the town they fired a salute, which was returned by a company of artillery from Market-street hill.

Sir Edward Berry, who has lately arrived from the West-Indies, retires from service on account of his bad state of health; and not from disaffection of the officer under whose command he last served, as has been stated in some American papers.

[Lon. pap.]

NEW-ORLEANS, August 29.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Fort Adams, to his friend in this city, dated August 25.

"As to our warlike affairs on Red-River, nothing has transpired since my last. Governor Claiborne and his adjutant-general are gone to Natchitoches; capt. Lockwood and Hains, left this to-day for that post, and col. Kingsbury, with the troops, will follow to-morrow; our militia are mustered and under drill."

CINCINNATI, (Ohio,) September 9.

Arrived in this town, on Thursday evening last, col. Aaron Burr, late vice-president of the U. States, and left it on Monday for Lexington, Kentucky.

CHARLESTON, September 19.

On Sunday, the 7th instant, in lat. 35, long. 60, capt. Walker fell in with the British 84 gun ship Cæsar, under jury-masts, standing for Halifax. She was admiral sir Richard Strachan's flag-ship, and had been dismasted in one of the late gales. The admiral had left her the day before and gone on board the Triumph, 74, one of the ships of his squadron, which was on its way to Europe.

September 23.

Captain Jones, arrived at quarantine, left Havanna on Monday last. A few hours after sailing, saw a French 74 gun-ship, with the loss of her fore and main-top-masts and mizen-mast, running in for the Moro, and a British frigate in chase. As soon as the frigate came within gun-shot, the 74 lay to, opened her lower ports, and commenced firing. After exchanging a few shot, the frigate finding the metal of the French ship too heavy, steered off, and the 74 got safe into Havanna, where she fired an Imperial salute, which was returned by the Spanish 74 lying in that port. Captain Jones states, that the French ship discharged upwards of 100 shot. A number of shot were also fired at the frigate by a Spanish fort, but it did not appear that she had sustained any damage.

The French ship is no doubt one of Jerome's squadron; and the British frigate we believe to be the Cerberus, of 36 guns, captain Selby, as she was the only British cruizer off Havanna.

NORFOLK, September 24.

This day came up to Hampton-Roads, his Britannic majesty's frigate Amazon, one of the fleet under the command of sir J. B. Warren, who is off our Capes with six sail of the line. Sir John having learnt at Newfoundland that the French fleet was on our coast, came in purluit of it.

In a late paper we stated, that sir Richard Strachan, in the Cæsar, was off our coast.—This was a mistake; he has not, with four other ships of the line of his fleet, been heard of since the gale.

Arrived, sloop Director, Tarlington, 6 days from Bermuda. Left there the following ships of war: Veteran, Magiceinne, Petterel and Indian. As the Director was coming out a ship with an admiral's flag, red at the fore-top, was going in.

September 30.

The British ship of war Leopard, of 50 guns, anchored in Hampton Roads on Sunday morning.

Captain Bolan, at 3 P. M. on Saturday last, 10 leagues W. by S. of Cape Henry, passed 7 sail of British men of war.

BALTIMORE, October 4.

Arrived last night, the ship Eliza, Waterman, from Liverpool. September 18, lat. 41, long. 54, spoke an English West-India fleet, who informed me that they had experienced a very heavy gale of wind; during the gale several of their convoy went down and foundered, and several others wrecked—the convoy ship had on board 3 or 4 masters that she took off the wrecks—they also informed, that a squadron of French ships of war had dispersed and destroyed a Jamaica fleet.

The British ship Cæsar, of 80 guns, capt. Richardson, has arrived at Halifax, under jurymasts—she is one of admiral Strachan's squadron, which left Barbadoes on the 13th August for the Chesapeake, in pursuit of Jerome Buonaparte. The Cæsar spoke on the 23d ult. the Terrible of 74 guns, which had lost all her masts—she was towed by the Decade frigate.

Intelligence is said to have been received at Halifax, that five sail of admiral Strachan's fleet had been dismasted in the late gale of last month; and that several American vessels were met with in a similar situation. [Boston paper.]

On Friday, the 10th inst. precisely at 12 o'clock, will be run for over said course, a Match Race, for Two thousand Dollars a side, between J. B. Bond, Esquire's, bay horse First Consul, and general Charles Ridgely's bay horse Oscar—the four mile heats.

From a London paper of August 15.

England and America.—The lord mayor gave yesterday a splendid entertainment to the lord chancellor and others of the cabinet ministers, in honour of his excellency the hon. David Erskine, the minister proceeding from England to America. There were present on this occasion—

The lord chancellor, earl Spencer, lord Ellenborough, Mr. Windham, sirs S. Cotterill, W. Curtis, and Charles Price; Mr. Barclay, Mr. Combe, Mr. Munroe, Mr. Pinkney, Gen. Lyman, the hon. H. Erskine, Mr. Harris, and Mr. Wilson, the lord chancellor's solicitor.

After dinner the following toasts were drank:

"The king, and God bless him."

"The queen, and royal family."

"The prince and his royal brothers, and thanks to them for the honour they have done the city in the present mayoralty by their presence."

"The American ministers present, Mr. Munroe and Mr. Pinkney, and gen. Lyman—and may there be perpetual harmony between the two countries."

Mr. Munroe begged leave to return thanks for the honour which had been done him, which he did not estimate so much personally, as with regard to his country. There existed a thousand reasons, he said, which made it desirable for him to promote a becoming feeling of good will between Great-Britain and America; but he must be considered a true and faithful servant of his republic, yet no personal exertions on his part should be wanting to preserve that cordiality which was so essential to the interests of the two countries; and he begged leave to drink all their good healths.

Mr. Pinkney observed, that he accorded perfectly in the sentiments that had been expressed by his colleague, and that no endeavours on his part should be wanting to promote the good understanding which ought ever to subsist between Great-Britain and America.

The next toast was:

"The lord chancellor of England, and may the name of Erskine and the trial by jury ever be united."

The lord chancellor returned thanks. He said, he felt it to be the highest honour that he could enjoy, to have his health drank and introduced in the manner it had been at the head-quarters of the city of London, a city where he has many opportunities of using the talents which he possessed in support of that law which was the admiration of the world, and which was so admirably executed by his noble and learned friend present, whose health he would take the liberty of proposing.

"The health of lord Ellenborough" having been drank—

His lordship thanked the company for the honour they had done him so much beyond his deserts.

NATCHES, September 12.

General James Wilkinson arrived in this city on Sunday last, and departs this morning, we understand, for Natchitoches, by the way of Fort Adams.

Extract of a letter from Natchitoches, dated August 30, 1806.

"On Sunday last, his excellency governor Claiborne arrived at this place, accompanied by colonel Henry Hopkins, adjutant general of the territory of Orleans, and a handsome escort of gentlemen of the county of Rapides; no intelligence of his excellency's coming was received at Natchitoches until a few minutes before his arrival, which was announced by a Federal salute from Fort Claiborne. The governor's arrival has made the most favourable impression on the minds of all those of the inhabitants who are attached to the United States; who saw a large armed force advancing within five leagues of Natchitoches, evincing an hostile disposition, already imprisoning and transporting into the dominions of Spain, no less than five citizens of the U. States, who had never offended them; cutting down and taking away the flag of the U. States from the Caddo nation, which country was acknowledged within our jurisdiction, and carrying the flag through the country, exhibiting it as a trophy of victory and superiority; an armed party of upwards of three hundred cavalry and mounted infantry, opposing and turning back a scientific exploring party, ascending Red-River by order of the president of the U. States, under the direction of major Freeman and capt. Sparks; harbouring and protecting slaves absconding from their masters, together with reports of still larger reinforcements advancing to join them.

"This situation of affairs will probably prolong for some time his excellency's stay here, for the purpose of organizing and putting himself at the head of such of his militia as it may be proper to call in on the occasion."

THE WEDDING-RING.

ANNETTE was milder than the dew
That ſpangles Arno's ſcented Grove,
And LUBIN conſtant, fond and true
As ever told the Tale of Love.

One eve, with chaſte yet mantling ſmile,
He bade her "gueſs what he could bring,"
Then, from a boſom void of guile,
He bluſh'd and trembling took a Ring.

The Maiden flatter'd, fidled ſigh'd—
Oh, CUPID! 'twas a charming ſcene—
And with affected coyneſs cri'd,
"Dear! what can ſuch a trinket mean?"

"Mean?" ſaid the youth, with glowing cheek,
And flurried that ſhe ſo miſtook;
"A ring-dove dropt it from his beak,
"I pick'd it up in yonder brook.

"And much we owe, my lovely fair,
"To this kind token of the dove,
"Who dropt it for the purpoſe there,
"A faithful emblem of our love.

"It is of cleareſt gold, refin'd,
"Affection's chaſteſt figu beſure;
"And poliſh'd, like my ANNETTE's mind,
"As ſimply elegant and pure.

"It's round too—what is that to prove?
"To what can ſuch an emblem tend?
"What! but th' eternity of love,
"A love like mine, that knows no end.

"ANNETTE, they ſay—nay, in this curve,
"No ſorcery lurks nor lawleſs art—
"That in this finger there's a nerve
"Which leads directly to the heart.

"Touch'd by this gold—for raptured there,
"Love's charming witcheries are ſuch,
"Fancy would faulter to declare
"The thrilling pleaſure—ſhall I touch?"

It ſtruck her finger—raptur'd quite,
She cried, "you're fooliſh, get you gone;
"Yet, if the touch be ſuch delight,
"What happineſs to put it on!"

He ſeiz'd the hint; the willing maid
Scarce knew what ſhe had ſaid or done;
But Love's ſweet influence obey'd,
And kiſs'd the ring that made them one.

And now, when rude or playful jeſt
At happy wedlock has its fling,
She claſps her LUBIN to her breaſt,
And ſmiling ſhews her WEDDING RING!

ELINOR.

A ſentimental Sketch.

—"Ah! how cold the wind blows!" ſaid a tall female, as ſhe deſcended from a white cliff which overhung the ſea. I raiſed my eyes wiſtfully to her face. I ſaw it was traced by the tear of Beauty, and not by the tear of Miſery. The freſh breeze blew through her looſe garments, and caſt her brown hair in diſordered but beautiful maſſes, over her naked boſom: her eyes were ſweet and blue, but they rolled with the quickneſs of phrenzy as ſhe approached. "Who are you?" aſked I, with emotion, taking her hand within mine. "They call me Wild Elinor!" anſwered ſhe, in a ſoft but hurried voice, eyeing ſome flowers. "I am very poor—I have no home—I have loſt my lover——

"Beneath yon wave

repeated ſhe in a muſical tone. "But come back with me and ſee it. I ſtrew it every day with flowers, and weep ſometimes. But—I can't now!" She ſtopped, and ſighed, then putting her hand on her breaſt—"I am very unhappy, ſtranger!—O my breaking heart!" Her voice died away. I thought reaſon beamed in her eyes, as ſhe ſunk on the ſod. I ſtooped to raiſe her falling frame. She lifted her large blue orbs towards me with ſilent gratitude—a ſoft bloom ſpread her pallid cheek; and, articulating "Edwin!" fell lifeleſs on the earth.

"Thy gentle ſpirit is now at reſt!" ſaid I, bending penſively over her clay. "But oh! what agonies muſt have torn thy heart, luckleſs maid! when returning reaſon ſhewed thee all thy wretchedneſs, and when that wretchedneſs cut the thread of thy exiſtence! Cold, cold is the loveliеſt form of nature! cloſed is the ſofteſt eye that ever poured a beam on mine! That form muſt now moulder in the duſt! that eye muſt no longer open to the world!" The tears guſhed as I ſpoke. I fell on the earth beſide her corpſe: the warm drops of ſenſibility waſhed the marble of her boſom—my heart heaved with agony. I was a man, and I gloried in my tears!—

DE BURGHE.

PATENT AND FAMILY MEDICINES.

The celebrated

Worm-Deſtroying Lozenges,

WHICH have within ſeven years paſt cured upwards of one hundred thouſand perſons of both ſexes, of every age and in every ſituation, of various dangerous complaints, ariſing from WORMS, and from obſtructions or foulneſs in the ſtomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of ſimilar title, ſo commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary, the particular excellence of this remedy is its being ſuited to every age and conſtitution; contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent, and is ſo mild in its operation that it cannot injure the moſt delicate pregnant lady, or the tendereſt infant of a week old, ſhould no worms exiſt in the body; but will, without pain or griping, cleanſe the ſtomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offenſive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal diſorders. They are particularly efficacious in carrying off all groſs humours and eruptions; feveriſh and bilious complaints, and are the ſafeſt and mildeſt purgative that can be uſed on any occaſion.

Alſo may be had,

Lee's celebrated Anti-Bilious Pills, for the prevention and cure of bilious and malignant fevers.

Infallible Ague and Fever Drops, for the cure of agues, remittent, and intermittent fevers.

Lee's True and Genuine Eye Water.

Lee's Corn Plaiſter.

Lee's Sovereign Ointment for the Itch, warranted a certain remedy, with one application, free from mercury or any pernicious ingredient.

APPROACH OF WINTER.

IN woods no more the feather'd throngs,
Pour native muſic on the gale;
And, heard you not the harveſt-ſong
Its laſt notes linger in the vale?

Where are the walks that bluſh'd with flow'rs?
And where the weſtern breeze that breath'd
Its pilfer'd ſweets to ſcent the bow'rs,
Which PEACE and calm CONTENTMENT wreath'd?

Since now no fragrant bloſſoms blow,
And deſolation ſweeps the ground,
Come, WINTER, teach me how to draw
A moral from the ruins round.

The ſober thought, to virtue dear,
Thy dreary walks ſhall furniſh ſtill;
Still ſweetly, on my penſive ear,
Shall fall the murmurs of the rill.

Oft through yon deſolated grove,
Where many a faded flow'ret lies!
At evening's ſhadowy hour I'll rove,
Regardleſs of the frowning ſkies.

And oft I'll to the lonely dell,
Or to the ruſſet heath repair,
To hear the diſtant village-bell
Sweet vibrate on th' expanſe of air.

If, on the wild wing of the blaſt,
The Demon of Deſtruction fly;
May then ſome ruſh-light, o'er the waſte,
With friendly beams direct the eye.

Adieu! ye glitt'ring ſcenes, adieu!
That ſtole my heart from Peace and Truth;
That promis'd pleaſure, while you threw
Illuſive ſplendor o'er my youth!

TIME, to all pictur'd bliſs a foe,
Proclaims, as through its waſtes we range,
That all our joy is abſent woe,
And all our life, progreſſive change!

From the Port Folio.

[The following extract is taken from the 177th number of THE AMERICAN LOUNGER, a periodical work, by Samuel Saunter, Eſquire, publiſhed in the Port Folio.]

—nothing lovlier can be found
In woman, than to ſtudy houſehold good,
And good works in her huſband to promote.
MILTON.

AN expreſſion in Milton, one of the firſt among uninſpired poets, reminded me of the diſpute which is ſo frequently and ſo zealouſly maintained on the equality of the ſexes. The entire paſſage cannot be too often quoted.

He is deſcribing the excellent form and happy state of our general anceſtors, as they were firſt ſeen by Satan, when he had journeyed to Paradiſe and confirmed himſelf in his evil intentions of vexing their peace and effecting their utter ruin.

—the Fiend
Saw, undelighted, all delight, all kind
Of living creatures, new to ſight, and ſtrange.
Two of far nobler ſhape, erect and tall,
Godlike erect, with native honour clad
In naked majeſty ſeem'd lords of all:
And worthy ſeem'd; for in their looks divine
The image of their glorious Maker ſhone,
Truth, wiſdom, ſanctitude ſevere and pure,
(Severe but in true filial freedom plac'd,)
Whence true authority in men; though both
Not equal, as their ſex not equal ſeem'd;
For contemplation he and valour form'd,
For ſoftneſs ſhe and ſweet attractive grace;
He for God only and ſhe for God in him:
His large fair front and eye ſublime declar'd
Abſolute rule; and hyacinthine locks
Round from his parted forelock manly hung
Cluſt'ring, but not beneath his ſhoulders broad:
She, as a veil down to her ſlender waiſt
Her unadorned golden treſſes wore
Diſhevell'd, but in wanton ringlets wav'd
As the Vine curls her tendrils, which implied
Subjection, but required with gentle ſway,
And by her yielded, by him beſt receiv'd,
Yielded with coy ſubmiſſion, modeſt pride,
And ſweet, reluctant, amorous delay.*

Mr. Tyler, one of the moſt modeſt and judicious of Milton's commentators, remarks with what judgment and delicacy the poet here avoids entering into a circumſtantial deſcription of Eve's beauty. It was, no doubt, he ſays, a very tempting occaſion of giving an indulgent looſe to his fancy: ſince the moſt laviſh imagination could not carry too high the charms of woman as ſhe firſt came out of the hands of her heavenly Maker. But as a picture of this kind would have been too light and gay for the grave turn of Milton's plan, he has very artfully mentioned the charms of her perſon in general terms only, and directed the reader's attention more particularly to the beauties of her mind. It alſo evinces how much more highly he prized the mind than the outward form; and to ſuch qualifications would I venture, with all humility, to direct the aſpiring hope, and ſtimulate the untiring toil of my fair countrywomen.

Let them be aſſured that though to dreſs, and troll the tongue, and roll the eye, be moſt winning arts to enſnare the paſſions, yet they will not gratify the mind—they cannot bind the heart. Two young perſons meet at that ſeaſon of life when the imagination is roving, and the heart is peculiarly alive to the ſofter emotions. They gaze on each other with mutual delight, and ſenſibility, ſweet ſenſibility whiſpers to them that their pleaſure will always laſt. Now all this is but the calenture of the brain—the mere wings of love without the body: it is not the arrow that has pierced, but it is the feathers that grazed; and the luxuriance of their feelings has magnified a paſſing touch into a wound by the bow-bearing god. The nipping winds of the winter of their life ſpeedily ſucceeds the buxom breezes of its ſpring, and, alas! too feelingly remind them what they are. The envious hand of Old Age furrows the dimpled cheek, and robs it of Nature's fair vermillion—the luſtre of the eye is dimmed, and thoſe lips which might once have ſuſpended the eccentric flight of the bee, are pale and bloodleſs. Familiarity has robbed every charm of its novelty, and a ſhort interchange of ſentiments has exhauſted the ſcanty coffers of their brains. Indifference quickly ſucceeds the warmeſt love, and mutual diſguſt is not afar off. That ſuch is the career of too many of our matrimonial adventurers is too well known. I have not drawn a caricature—the picture is ſketched from life. I am no miſanthrope. I delight not in ſuch lurid colourings of Nature's faireſt work. The canvas has not been polluted by envy nor unrequited love, nor has hatred or malice furniſhed a ſingle tint. I am far from being an audacious reviler of the ſex. It is my beſt pleaſure to cheriſh a ſincere fondneſs and an undiſſembled reſpect for its lovelineſs and dignity. Milton has acknowledged that love is not the loweſt end of human life, and I readily believe that this world, without the ſweet intercourſe of looks and ſmiles, would be but a wide waſte indeed.

But whilſt I admire, and praiſe, and defend, let me not be ſuppoſed ſo blind as to view all their virtues and their vices, their beauties and deformities through the ſame partial viſta. The ſickly mean of affectation, the folly of a weak mind, and the ungenial chill of prudery, a tainted imagination with many other frailties which female fleſh is heir to, muſt be corrected before woman can be called perfect. Yet, with all theſe imperfections, how infinitely do they ſurpaſs us in virtue, friendſhip, conſtancy, fortitude, genuine good ſenſe, and unaffected good nature?

Nor do I believe there are ſo many of the character I have deſcribed, as the arrogance of ſome and the impertinence of others would imagine. One, far above the reſt, I have before me, lovely, meek and amiable, ſuch as the reſt ought to be. Her manners are free without familiarity, dignified but not haughty, correct but not prudith. In her converſation ſhe is ſenſible without pedantry; ſhe can talk of dreſs with the gay and the frivolous, and converſe on books with the ſtudious. She has a tear for the tale of woe, without affecting what ſhe does not feel, and when the melody of muſic ſteals upon her willing ear, ſhe has a heart to feel and a taſte to reliſh. But the taſk of portraying ſuch perfection, though pleaſing, is too arduous, and ſhall not be diſgraced by an unworthy hand. It is above the powers of the humble proſaiſt, and the harmony and fancy of the poet are only adequate.

In almoſt every poetical work of eſtabliſhed merit, ſuch portraits may be found; and it will be perceived, that the artiſt never riſes to ſuch a height, and his genius never ſhines more reſplendant, than when he borrows a gleam of inſpiration from the rays of female charms. Such are the Eve of Milton, the Imogen of Shakſpeare, the Belphœbe of Spencer, the Armida of Taſſo, &c. &c.

Let women conſult theſe. Let them lay aſide their pride and affectation. Let them ſelect a milliner for the mind, and hold the mirror up to nature. Let them do this, and all the ſeverity of ſatire will be retorted. The ſpear of Ithuriel will touch lightly, and not diſplay a ſingle ſtain on the white robe of their purity.
SEDLEY.

*I will not make any apology for ſo long a quotation. The paſſage is ſo animated, and contains ſo exquiſite a picture, that no reader will blame me for aſſigning it a place in the pages of the Port Folio.

American Intelligence.

KINGSTON, (Jam.) Auguſt 30.

The Ferret brig of 18 guns, the hon. capt. Cadogan, ſailed on Sunday morning for Coro, on the Spaniſh main, having on board capt. James Ledlie, of the Columbian army, who returns with anſwers from ſir Eyre Coote and admiral Dacres to the diſpatches addreſſed to them, and received here on the 15th inſtant from gen. Franciſco de Miranda.

We underſtand that the heads of our government have expreſſed themſelves in high terms of approbation of the laudable purpoſes gen. Miranda is aiming at, and regret much that they are precluded from giving him the aſſiſtance which his views demand, as they cannot take ſo great a reſponſibility on themſelves, not having had any communication from his majeſty's miniſters on the ſubject. It is much to be lamented that no aſſiſtance could be afforded the gen. from this quarter, as we are well aſſured, that a few hundred men, tolerably diſciplined, would have effected all he wiſhed for in a few weeks, a junction with a conſiderable body of men, now encamped ready to join him; but which he cannot attempt with the force at preſent under his command.

The Stork ſloop of war, of 18 guns, capt. Le Goyt, the Flying-Fiſh ſchooner of 12 guns, lieut. Price, and the Piné ſchooner of 5 guns, lieut. Oatley, ſailed on Monday for Coro.

CHARLESTON, (S. C.) September 20.

Capt. Berry, who arrived yeſterday from Havannah, informs, that on the 27th ult. ſome Britiſh privateers landed a number of men upon the Iſle of Pines, took the fort, and plundered the neighbourhood of cattle, &c. This, with the appearance of ſeveral large ſhips off the coaſt, had excited very conſiderable alarm among the Spaniards, who marched a few men to the ſcene of devaſtation, but before they had an opportunity of evincing their proweſs, the Britiſh had embarked without moleſtation. The Vera Cruz ſhip which was lately captured by the Britiſh off the Havannah, had on board at the time of her capture, 900,000 dollars, the property of individuals; 250,000 dollars, belonging to the King, had been landed.

PHILADELPHIA, October 10.

We underſtand a diſturbance took place on Wedneſday night laſt in Southwark, between ſome of the crew of the French frigate and a party of other ſailors. Who were the aggreſſors we have not heard; but we think it highly deſirable, to quiet the apprehenſions of that neighbourhood, that the police ſhould be vigilant and active there.

BALTIMORE, October 10.

Arrived, ſchooner Henrietta, Fearſon, 15 days from St. Bartholomews.—Two days previous to his ſailing, captain F. ſaw a letter from St. Kitts, ſtating, that a gale of wind took place about 10 days before, and had deſtroyed all the veſſels lying in the harbour of Roſſeau, and alſo in St. Pierres and Fort Royal Martinique; that half of the town of Roſſeau was deſtroyed, and 300 perſons periſhed on board the veſſels. Heard of no Americans being loſt. The ſame letter adds, that Miranda had effected a ſecond landing at a place (the name of which is not recollected by the captain) a ſhort diſtance to the windward of Laguira; that he ſtood his ground, and would be able to do ſo, until the arrival of the Penelope, a ſhip of the line, with other reinforcements from Jamaica, which had certainly ſailed ſometime before, and then it was expected there would be an inſurrection in his favour, particularly among the people of colour.

October 11.

Captain Allen, arrived from Bordeaux, this forenoon, ſtates, that accounts were received at Bordeaux on the 18th Auguſt, that lord Lauderdale was to leave Paris on the 12th of that month. Weſt-India produce, which had been very low, was riſing rapidly, 200,000 wt. coffee had been ſold a few days before at 37 dollars per 100 wt. clear of duties.

Copy of a letter from Bourdeaux, to the keeper of the coffee-houſe in this city, dated Auguſt 17.

"Reports of peace between England and France, have been very prevalent here for the laſt fortnight—but ſeem now to abate, though probably with no more reaſon than they were propagated, as both lord Lauderdale and lord Yarmouth are ſtill in Paris. In the mean-time commerce is at a ſtand, and very little doing."

Capt. Stevens, arrived at Boſton on Saturday laſt, from St. Sebaſtians, (Brazile coaſt) informs, that accounts had been received previous to his ſailing, that ſir Home Popham had arrived off Monteviedo, and ſent a flag demanding the ſurrender of that place. The iſſue was not known when he came away.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

Friday laſt the grand match between gen. Ridgely's horſe Oſcar, and Mr. Joſhua B. Bond's horſe First Conſul, the four mile heats, for 4,000 dollars, was decided at Canton, in favour of Oscar, winning in high ſtyle. This race is conſidered the handſomeſt and beſt ever ſeen in this ſtate. The laſt heat was run in ſeven minutes and forty ſeconds.

The Engliſh government has granted licences to the merchants of London to trade direct with the Emperor of Hayti.

120 French troops were ſent from Gaudaloupe to the Caraccas to aſſiſt in oppoſing Miranda.

From Paris papers of Auguſt 12.

Every difficulty in Germany is raiſed; Auſtria has acknoweledged the confederation of the Rhine.

Pruſſia has acknowledged the ſame.

The king of Pruſſia has named Mr. Humboldt miniſter plenipotentiary at Naples, and has alſo appointed ambaſſadors to the king of Holland, and the great duke of Cleves.

The emperor of Auſtria (no more emperor of Germany) has acknowledged the new king of the two Sicilies.

Orders are given for all the armies in Germany to return to France, and the great fetes will take place the latter end of September.

The affairs on the continent are now ſo arranged, that it may be calculated on a laſting peace.

The ratifications of the treaty of peace with Ruſſia will be exchanged at St. Peterſburg the 15th of this month, Auguſt, and every thing announces emperor Alexander has the ſincereſt deſire to contribute to the peace of the whole world.

In England the people wiſh for peace; Mr. Fox and a great part of the cabinet in which they count Mr. Erſkine, lord Petty, lord Howich, lord Moira, and Mr. Sheridan. The negotiations have been on foot ſince the month of March; and were arrived at the point of maturity, and even near being ſigned, as has been reported. But the grave malady of Mr. Fox, and his abſence from the council, has rendered all uncertain, and has plunged all the great intereſts into a diplomatic debate; Mr. Fox has a complication of complaints—the laſt news from London inform he had undergone ſeveral operations, that ſecures his exiſtence; but that will oblige him for ſome time to take repoſe.

It is with great pleaſure, and we ſay it with confidence, that the very beſt underſtanding exiſts between our miniſters in London, and the Britiſh government. Mr. Munroe and Mr. Pinkney are both much reſpected, and confided in; the appointment of the latter was very ſatisfactory in England, and afforded a pleaſing evidence of the friendly diſpoſition of our government, notwithſtanding our prohibitory law, which it was expected would be repealed in ſome way or other.

Diſpatches from our miniſters in London, as late as the middle of Auguſt, received by the Sheffield, [in 48 days from London] were ſent on to Waſhington by the mail on Sunday.—The grand expedition, ſuppoſed for the Mediterranean, came down the Channel the 18th of Auguſt.—[Norfolk Ledger.]

The ſhip John and Alice, ſailed from London about the 6th of Auguſt, having on board the baggage of Mr. Erſkine, the Britiſh miniſter.—[ibid.]

A letter which we have ſeen from an American captain of much intelligence, from Barcelona, as late as the laſt of July, ſtates, that the Tuniſians and Tripolitans, have a very conſiderable force at ſea, and that the Americans in the Mediterranean are under conſiderable alarm. [ibid.]

Mr. Halliday, one of the paſſengers in the Gold Hunter, has diſpatches for government from the American miniſters at London. Our differences with Great-Britain were ſaid to be in an amicable train of adjuſtment; and the illneſs of Mr. Fox only retarded the completion of all differences. [N. Y. Gaz.]

From the Richmond Enquirer.

"De Yrujo is re-appointed by his court, at the command of Buonaparte, miniſter plenipotentiary to the United States! If he is received in that character, we ſhall be the moſt degraded and deſpiſed nation upon the earth! If he is ſent from our country, and repulſed, as he ſhould be, with indignity and inſult from our ſhores, war with France and Spain is the inevitable conſequence. Since the battle of Auſterlitz there has been but one man on the continent of Europe; on that eventual day, the political exiſtence of every other inhabitant, be he prince or peaſant of continental Europe was annihilated. But the battle of Trafalgar, too, did much; and oppreſſed human nature may yet boaſt that there is one independent nation in the eaſtern world. That 'little bit of land in the ocean,' called Britain,' ſtill oppoſes a ſturdy oppoſition, and inexpungable bulwark to the views of univerſal empire which it is manifeſt are entertained by Buonaparte. This man by a ſeries of wonderful atchievements has elevated himſelf to the very pinnacle of chimerical glory, and to the zenith of human power.

"I do not heſitate to ſay, that it is the policy of the United States to form an alliance offenſive and defenſive with Great-Britain for the expreſs purpoſe of throwing our weight into her ſcale of oppoſition to the univerſal ambition of Buonaparte. We could do this for reaſons, before mentioned, without making the ſmalleſt ſacrifice. We could ſecure the powerful and invincible aid of the Britiſh navy without paying a ſhilling for it. What would Great-Britain expect in return for this aſſiſtance? She would expect what we could give her, without loſs to us, but at the ſame time of unſpeakable advantage to herſelf; of advantage to her in that very object of her ambition, for which ſhe ſo bravely and unceaſingly contends. With our aſſiſtance Great-Britain could conquer and retain the whole Weſt-Indian Archipelago. We do not want theſe iſlands; we have not a fleet to protect them. But Great-Britain does want them, and Great-Britain has a fleet to protect them. It is our policy to expel every European naſion from the continent of North and South America; and Great-Britain would readily give up Canada for the Weſt-Indies. What an enviable and elevated happineſs would then be our lot! The whole weſtern world from Cape Horn to the North Pole "free as air!"

FROM HONDURAS.

Captain Godfrey, who arrived yeſterday (via quarantine) from Bay of Honduras, which he left 26th Auguſt, informs, that the inhabitants expected an immediate attack from the Spaniards, having received information that ſeveral thouſand troops and a number of gun-boats, &c. were fitted out at Barcalar and Campeachy, for the purpoſe of attacking them. The Engliſh were making ſpirited exertions to receive them, and had armed boats watching their movements. A flag of truce, which had been ſent them by the Engliſh, had not returned when capt. G. failed. [Boston pap.]

We are informed, from a ſource entitled to every degree of credit, of the following ſingular duel, which lately took place at Bayau Sarah. Two negro wenches, (the property to Mr. Bailey Chaney) quarrelled during the abſence of the family—a challenge was immediately given and accepted; they found means to procure their maſter's piſtols, and repaired to an appointed ſpot, where they meaſured off the ground, and proceeded, ſecundum artem, to obtain ſatisfaction from each other for the affront given. At the firſt fire, one of the fable heroines received a ball in the ſhoulder, and after ineffectually endeavouring to diſcharge her piſtol, threw it contemptuouſly away and the affair ended. [Natchez paper.]

Singular inſtance of abſtinence and privation.

A poor man, who reſides at Bethnal Green, where he is known by the name of Old Tom, follows at night the occupation of a watchman. In the morning, when he comes off duty, he takes only 1 hour's reſt, and then acts as a bricklayer's labourer till the hour of his evening vocation: ſo that throughout the year heis ſupposed to be awake 23 hours daily. He is upwards of 60 years of age, lives on ſcarcely any thing but bread and cheeſe, which he eats as he walks along; his general drink is water, and he feels no inconvenience from the ſeverity of his mode of life. He is remarkable active, goes to church twice every Sunday, and, while there, prefers ſtanding to ſitting down. It is aſſerted that by his extreme induſtry and parſimony, he has ſaved conſiderable ſums of money, which he lends to hard working-people at a moderate intereſt. [Lond. pap.]

There is now exhibiting in London as a ſhow, a man of monſtrous ſize, whoſe name is DANIEL LAUBERT, aged 34 years, a native of Litchfield. He weighs 700 pounds; meaſures 3 yards 4 inches round the waiſt, and one yard one inch round the leg. He eats little, drinks nothing but water, enjoys perfect health, and appears to be at eaſe and in good ſpirits.

If monſtroſity is the effect of water drinking, the preſent age, generally, has not much to fear on this ſcore. Ibid.

EXTRACT—NATCHES, September 6.

"Yeſterday diſpatches arrived from gov. Claiborne, who was at Natchitoches with more correct accounts than we had before. Major King, who went over with governor Claiborne, alſo arrived here. The Spaniards, about 1200, had actually croſſed the Sabine and arrived at the Stoney creek, or Bayou Pierre French ſettlement, about 60 miles on this ſide the Sabine, and 50 from Natchitoches.—Stoney creek falls into Red-River, and thence they detatched a ſmall party to within 7 miles of Natchitoches. Some communications paſſed between governor Claiborne and the Spaniſh commander, and the Spaniſh party thereupon returned to the main body at Bayou Pierre; where they ſay they are ordered and determined to remain, and expect reinforcements. Bayou Pierre is I believe, the ſame poſt from which Turner drove them laſt year.

"Our whole force from Natchitoches, even when thoſe from Loſtus Heights arrive, will not exceed 500 men. One company remains at the Heights. There were 250 regulars at New-Orleans, and about 120 at Tombigbee. This is the whole of our regular force in this quarter. The Spaniards I believe, are weak, both at Baton Rouge and Mobille; but they can be readily reinforced from Penſacola, or the Havanna.

"It is reported, but how truly I do not mean to ſay, that the old French ſettlers on the other ſide the Miſſiſſippi, refuſed to turn out againſt the Spaniards; that upon the call of the militia the Americans only turned out with alacrity.

"The people of the Miſſiſſippi territory are very ſpirited on this occaſion, and have raiſed ſeveral volunteer companies. This country is ſtrong, and I believe the inhabitants could defend it againſt any ſudden force the Spaniards can ſend; but the country below is level and open, where horſe can act with great advantage; and the greater part of the Spaniſh forces are ſaid to be cavalry. Yet, I am perſuaded, that if hoſtilities were to commence, but little force by dint of enterprize and hardineſs would be too much for them. But it does not ſeem likely, at preſent, that hoſtilities will take place. Col. Cuſhing does not mean to force the Spaniards from their preſent poſition; but he will not ſuffer them to advance; and indeed while a negotiation is depending in Europe, if things can be ſo conducted without diſadvantage, it is both the moſt humane and moſt uſeful policy; for what good would we derive from ſhedding human blood, either of the Spaniards or our own citizens.

"We are told here that judge Prevoſt,* of New-Orleans, is removed, but who is his ſucceſſor is not ſaid. A Kentucky paper, called the Western World, attracts very great attention here; among others Judge Prevoſt, Edward Livingſton, general Wilkinſon, Mr. Burr, Mr. J. Brown, of Kentucky, are charged as concerned in a new conſpiracy againſt the peace of the whole union, and a ſeparation of this ſection from the eaſtern parts of the union. Many here are well acquainted with the old conſpiracy of a ſimilar kind concerted with the Spaniards and with the leading character concerned in it, and many wonder how Wilkinſon came to be appointed to the chief command of our force. One of general Wayne's old captains informed me, that the ſtory of Neuman's conduct was ſtronger againſt Wilkinſon than any thing yet publiſhed. This he ſpeaks of his own knowledge, and ſays the depoſitions were ſent on to our government. I am ſorry to find that even gen. S. Smith is attempted to be implicated in a late paper on this ſubject. This ſubject ſince it has been ſtirred ought to be ſearched to the bottom, whether as an act of juſtice to the country or to the individuals. If any miſchief is meditated it is now certainly checked, for all parties will be cautious."

Kotzebue in his travels in 1804, obſerves, "The temper of the Swiſs ſtill reſembles the ruffled ſurface of the deep out of which a ſubterranious fire has ſuddenly projected ſome rocks, againſt which the confined ſurges daſh their impotent ſpray." But as this is the country of Geſner and has furniſhed the beſt modern paſtorals, and the beſt examples of the manners which imagination has aſſigned to the paſtoral life, we ſhall cite one example from Lantier's Swiſs Tourift, and which happened in the firſt years of liberty. A peaſant named Frantz came one evening to look for Gaſpard, who was mowing a meadow, and ſaid, "my friend, this is hay harveſt. Thou knoweſt that we have a diſpute about this meadow: we know not to whom it properly belongs—To decide the queſtion, I have collected the judges at Schwitz. Come, then, to-morrow with me, before them." Gaſpard replied, "Thou ſeeſt, Frantz, that I have mowed the meadow, and muſt make hay to-morrow. I cannot be abſent." Said Frantz, "And I cannot ſend away the judges, who have fixed on the day. Indeed we ſhould have known to whom it belonged before it had been mown." They had ſome controverſy on the ſubject, and at laſt Gaſpard ſaid, "I will tell thee what thou ſhalt do. Go to-morrow to Schwitz. Give the judges thy reaſon and mine; and I ſhall ſave the trouble of going myſelf." On this agreement, Frantz went to plead for and againſt himſelf, and drew out the reaſons on both ſides as well as he could. When the judges had decided, he went to Gaſpard, and ſaid, "The meadow is thine—The ſentence is in thy favour; and I wiſh thee joy." Frantz and Gaſpard continued friends. People the earth with ſuch men, and the world will be happy. [Sal. Reg.]

London papers to the 16th August (one day later than our previous advices) were received at the office of the Mercantile Advertiser, by the ship Gold Hunter. She sailed on the 17th, and had a paper of that date; but being boarded on the Banks of Newfoundland by two British frigates from Greenland, capt. Vose gave it to one of the commanders at his earnest solicitation.

It contained, however, we are informed, no additional intelligence on the subject of the pending negotiations: and it was the general expectation in London that they would be broken off without terminating in peace.

The paper of the 16th is politically unintersting.

The report of the commissioners appointed to investigate the charges against the Princess of Wales has been made to the king, but is not published. It bears date on the 14th July, and was delivered on the 11th of August to the illustrious lady by one of the lord Chancellor's footmen; a mark of disrespect which is treated with becoming severity by some of the London editors. The report, we understand, is a complete exculpation from the charge of having borne a spurious child, and notices only some trifling levities which were deemed unbecoming her exalted situation. [N. Y. M. Adv.]

An account of a strange Animal killed on the Island of Noirmotier by two girls.*

In the month of June, two young girls of the Island of Noirmotier, seeking for shells in the crevices of the rocks, one of them discovered in a kind of a natural grotto an animal of a human form, which, as soon as it saw the girl, erected its head, leaning at the same time on its hands. The girl called to the other, who having a long knife, struck it into the animal, which upon being wounded groaned like a human person. The two girls cut of its hands, which had fingers and nails quite formed, with webs between the fingers.—The surgeon of the Island went to see it. The account he gives is, that it was as big as the largest man; that its skin was white, resembling that of a drowned person; that it had the breasts of a full chested woman; a flat nose, a large mouth, the chin adorned with a kind of beard, formed of fine shells; and over the whole body tufts of similar white shells: It had the tail of a fish, and at the extremity of it a kind of feet.

* Noirmotier, a town of France, and capital of an Isle of the same name, lying in the mouth of the river Loire.

From a London paper.

As we had some rain, on St. Swithin's and every day since, so according to an old popular opinion, we may expect a portion every day, till forty days are complete. St. Swithin was a Bishop of Winchester, so early as the year 860; and as tradition states, there was in his time, a period of great scarcity, and from the dryness of the ensuing season, nothing less than absolute famine was apprehended. The good Bishop offered up incessant prayers to Heaven to avert the horror threatened the whole kingdom. Happily, his prayers availed, for on the 15th of July some rain fell, which continued daily, more or less, full forty days, and restored the blessing of plenty to a despairing people. A similar saying applies to St. Paul's day, the 25th of January. We find these instances of superstition thus noticed by GAY, in his Trivia:

All superstition from thy breast repel,
Let cred'lous boys and prattling nurses tell,
How, if on Swithin's feast the welkin low'rs,
And ev'ry penthouse streams with hasty show'rs,
Twice twenty days shall clouds their fleeces drain,
And wath the pavements with incessant rain:
Let no such vulgar tales debase thy mind,
Nor Paul nor Swithin, rule the clouds and wind.

CROPS IN VIRGINIA.

So great is the apprehended scarcity in several counties of Virginia, that a proposition has been made to stop the proceedings of the courts of justice. According to the Raleigh Minerva it has been actually carried into effect in Brunswick county; for "the Magistrates refused at the time fixed for the last term, to go on the bench and open court; alledging that to give judgment at this period, against many individuals would be their ruin."—Some of the Southern and Western countries, unwilling thus to suspend the administration of justice, have deliberated upon the expediency of petitioning the legislature to enjoin all executions, and to suspend the collection of taxes during the ensuing year. Such a measure is said to have been adopted within a few years past in regard to some of the counties of this commonwealth.

"Our crops, of every kind (says a gentleman in Brunswick county) are astonishingly short. Nothing less than 5 dollars per barrel is spoken of, for corn from the stack. I am confident that unless our demand can be supplied from abroad, the next Summer will exhibit many distressing scenes of extreme want." Let the Corn-Merchant, therefore, seriously consider, whether it would not be extremely to his interest, to supply the southern parts of Virginia with corn, from the more abundant markets of South-Carolina and New-Orleans. Richmond Enquirer.

We are assured that JOSEPH H. NICHOLSON, esq. has declined accepting the office of collector of the port of Baltimore, to which situation he was appointed, vice R. Purviance, esq. deceased. [Telegraphe.]

Doctor Erskine, appointed minister plenipotentiary to the congress of the United States, set off on Thursday last, for his destination. The same day Mr. Braham quitted London on a mission to the court of Lisbon.—Lon. pap. of Aug. 21.

BY YESTERDAY's PACKET.

PHILADELPHIA, October 11.

Extract of a letter, dated Wilmington, (Del.) October 9, 1806.

"Our election for representative to congress and state legislators was held on the 7th inst. and I have the pleasure to inform you, that Mr. James M. Broom is re-elected without opposition, and that our legislature is decidedly federal."

NORFOLK, October 7.

The British ship of war Leopard sailed from Hampton Roads on Saturday. The Melampus is still at anchor in Lynnhaven bay.

The squadron under the command of Sir J. B. Warren, has sailed for England.

BALTIMORE, October 14.

Extract of a letter from New-Orleans, to a mercantile house in this city, dated September 12, 1806.

"We have news from the Attakapas, saying "it is rumoured here that col. Thompson has ordered the militia of this county to be in readiness; and that capt. Boyer has been defeated and taken, and that major Sparks is driven back. It is certain, that the Spanish army is on the march this side of Natchitoches."

"We have just, however, received authentic information, that there has been no engagement, but that the Spaniards were obliged to return across the Sabine river again to preserve their health, and that while they were on this side about 3 weeks, they lost 500 of their men with the fever; and that the governor of the interior of Mexico, was on his way with troops, and when he arrived they would have an army of 5 or 6000 men, when they will endeavour to force a passage to this place."

LATEST FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Arrived at New-York, on Saturday last, the schooner Hamlet, capt. Henry, in 32 days from Bourdeaux; and the Robert Burns, Waite, from Liverpool. By the former Paris papers to the 28th of August, and London advices to the 22d, inclusive, have been received. These papers furnish nothing definitive on the subject of the negotiation at Paris, the only topic, which, as it now exclusively engrosses the public mind, could give them interest. A passenger, however, from Bourdeax, supplies this deficiency, and states, that the negotiation was entirely broken off, and that the earl of Lauderdale, on the 28th day of August, had demanded passports for his return to London.

MIRANDA.

Captain Brigs, arrived yesterday from Curracoa, reports, that he was at Aruba, 6 weeks ago, at which time Miranda was in possession of that Island. Capt. B. sold part of his cargo to the British vessels under direction of Miranda, which consisted of the AUTUMNAL REFECTIONS.

"Oh let us tune one tender farewell to the fading year."

SUMMER's sweets with autumn's blended,
Flora's beauties soon are o'er;
These but for a while's suspended,
Youth once past returns no more.

Yonder fields, late cloath'd in verdure,
Where is now your beauteous hue?
Where with delight I've often wandered,
Purling streams adieu! adieu!

Where, Oh! now, ye tuneful warblers,
Tenants of the shady grove,
Where with pleasure oft I've listen'd
To your artless tale of love.

The Whippoorwill, in strain melodious,
In silent eve, no more we hear;
Nor the cooing Dove harmonious,
In plantive note doth charm the ear.

Farewell green hills! farewell ye vales!
Where lambkins us'd to sport with glee;
Adieu, ye zephyrs, fragrant gales!
That whisper'd thro' the trembling tree.

Rude Boreas soon, with iron sceptre,
Must a while his way maintain;
May we find within our cottage,
Peace of mind, and virtue reign.

Learn, O youth! in NATURE's volume,
Useful lessons for the mind;
In ev'ry page, in ev'ry column,
Rich instruction thou may'st find.

See the fairest flowers fading,
Withered leaves now strew the ground;
Winter soon, our plains invading,
Comes with majesty profound.

Thus we see the changing season,
Flora yields her sweetest breath;
Hence, vain man! adhere to reason,
Thou, alas! must yield to death!

Another Spring's returning verdure
We perhaps may never view!
Then may our thoughts aspire further,
Where summer ever blooms anew.

The advantages offered to adventurers, and the object to which the money is principally to be applied, the managers hope will produce such a speedy sale of the tickets as may enable them to commence the drawing at an early day. All prizes will be paid within sixty days from the completion of the drawing; and such as may not be demanded within twelve months after will be considered as generous donations to the objects of the lottery. Bond has been given to the amount of 30,000 dollars, to the mayor and city council, for the faithful performance of its conditions.

Tickets may be had of the managers, and of such other persons as they may appoint; and prizes in the Cathedral and Second Presbyterian Church Lotteries will be received in payment.

RAN away, on the first of July, 1806, from the subscriber, living in Anne-Arundel county, Patapsco Neck, near Hawkins's Point, within ten miles of Baltimore, Maryland, a likely young negro man named BOB, but sometimes calls himself BOB MILLER; is a tolerably black, straight made fellow, with a smiling countenance when spoken to, has a remarkable scar on the lower part of the back of his neck, near the size of a cent, under his shirt collar; he was raised to the farming business, he is in the twenty-fourth year of his age, about five feet nine or ten inches high; had on when he went off, a high crown felt hat, with a band and buckle, an over round coat, deep blue mixed strong cloth doubled at each elbow, and the left shoulder, osnabrig shirt, and hempen linen trousers. They are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions; feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion.

A project, says a New-York paper, is now actually on foot, and progressing with rapidity, to unite by means of a turnpike, the commerce of the western waters with the Atlantic ocean. This road commences at Newburg, 60 miles above New-York, on the Hudson, and terminates on lake Ontario, near Oswega. This enterprise, as important to the vast inland country bordering on the lakes as to the city of New-York, will have the effect to place the latter on a footing with the most commercial cities on the globe.

From the New-York Commercial Advertiser.

OF GAETA.

In one of our London papers we have found the following articles of capitulation, demanded by the garrison of this little fortress, so justly celebrated for their determined and gallant opposition to the arms of France. It was in March (says the Courier) that the French first sat down before that insignificant fortress, as the Moniteur called it, defended by a small garrison of 1600 men. For nearly five months it braved all the efforts of the French arms, and kept an army of 16,000 men employed before it. For 14 days the fortress was bombarded, and did not capitulate till a great part of the town had been laid in ashes, and two practicable breaches been effected.

ARTICLES OF CAPITULATION,

Demanded by the garrison of Gaeta, after a siege of five months, and after two breaches were made.

Article 1. The services of the holy catholic apostolic and Roman religion shall be respected and preserved.

Answer. Granted.

Article 2. All the garrison shall be permitted to embark with their arms, baggage, provisions, and the whole train of field-pieces in the place.

Answer. In consideration of the brave defence made by the garrison, they are permitted to embark with their arms and provisions; it being understood that the troops which compose it shall not carry arms, nor serve against France and her allies, nor against those of his majesty Joseph Napoleon, during one year and a day, either upon the continent or in the islands. Eight pieces of field cannon are granted to the garrison; the rest of the field artillery, that of the fortress, and all the magazines, as well the ammunition as victuals, and other military effects, shall be faithfully delivered up to the French army, without dilapidation. At the same time, provisions for ten days shall be granted to the garrison.

Article 3. All the wounded who remain in the place, as well as the sick, shall enjoy all the rights of hospitality, and shall be treated every one according to his rank. Every thing necessary shall be furnished by the French army.

Answer. Granted.

Article 4. All persons employed under the crown, such as the civil governor, the auditor of the army, and all the members of the little tribunal, shall be respected in their persons, their properties, and their families. No individual who may wish to leave the place, and to change his country, shall be prevented, neither he nor his family. Individuals, in case for their own security, will provide themselves with the necessary passports.

Answer. Granted.

Article 5. Twenty-four hours after the ratification of the present capitulation, the interval during which the Neapolitan troops will embark, the French troops may enter the place. During this interval an officer of the artillery of the fortress, conjointly with an officer of the French artillery, shall proceed to the surrender of the place, as far as relates to the artillery, the ammunition, and the other effects.

Answer. On the 19th of July, at eight in the evening, all the troops composing the garrison of Gaeta must be embarked. Nevertheless, the same day, at precisely five in the morning, the principal gate of the city, and the pollern of the bastion of Breccia, in front of the fortifications, shall be surrendered to the French troops. No French soldier shall be permitted to enter the town or the citadel, except the officers and commissaries charged with receiving the artillery and magazines of the place.

At eight in the evening, the town, the whole front towards the sea coast, shall be occupied by the imperial and royal troops.

Done, agreed upon, and subscribed, on the part of the garrison by M. Louis Bardet, lieutenant colonel of engineers, and Gaetano Barone, captain commmandant of the first free corps, provided with full powers by col. Francesco Hotz, commandant, and ad interim gov. of the place; and on the part of his excellency the marshal of the empire Massena, commanding the besieging army before Gaeta, by the general brigade Francheschi, commandant of the legion of honour, &c. provided with full powers by the marshal.

GAETANO BARONE,
(Approved) MASSENA.
July 18, 1806, 11 at night.

Prince Lewis, of Hesse-Phillipsthal.

The following account of the brave defender of Gaeta is given in a German paper: He is the son of the present landgrave of Hesse-Phillipsthal, and was born on the 28th of October, 1766. He began his military career in the Dutch service, as a captain in his father's regiment of dragoons. In the commencement of the year 1791, he was married to the barroness Von Trips, a barroness in her own right. This connexion was formed without the knowledge of the parents of either party, the marriage ceremony having been privately performed by a Dutch clergyman. Soon after, however, he went to reside with a relative of his wife, who lived near Cologne. There he spent the autumn of the year 1791, and afterwards passed into the Neapolitan service. Col. Acton, the well known brother of the minister of war, had about the same time married a lady of the family of Trips. This family connexion, added to the great merit of the prince, procured him a speedy promotion. He was soon appointed governor of the fortress of Caserta, and the princess, his wife, was about the same time placed in a distinguished situation in the service of the queen of Naples. At the time of the former conquest of Naples by the French, this lady retired to Munich, where she died about a year ago. In the year 1799, the prince of Hesse-Phillipsthal was raised to the rank of field-marshal; at the same time he was appointed governor of Gaeta, and inspector of all the frontier forces of the Neapolitan dominions. In the year 1803, his Neapolitan majesty conferred on him the order of St Januarius.

The Swedish schooner Fanny, capt. Hand, from St. Bartholomews, which arrived at Charleston, on the 4th instant, touched at Cape-Francois. To the politeness of the owner we are indebted for the following information:—The emperor of Hayti exercises the most despotic government, like his great prototype in France, over his unfortunate subjects. He had lately been in Aux-Cayes, and dissolved the administration without ceremony. He has declared that he wishes to see no foreigners in his ports—that his subjects must learn to do without the luxuries which they formerly received from America, and live solely upon the produce of the island. He anticipates the time and is preparing for the event, when France will be at liberty to attack them; when all her ports shall be blockaded, or his sea-ports destroyed, and they obliged to seek for shelter in the fastnesses among the mountains. Here they will make their great, their last stand; already accustomed to depend for their support and comfort solely on the produce of their own soil, it will be a difficult matter to dislodge them or to bring them to terms of starvation. The emperor pays great attention to the plantations; all the idlers in the city are compelled to go out and work for their living; an example worthy of being followed by more refined governments.—The black inhabitants are much dissatisfied with their emperor and his government, and oftentimes complain of his tyranny, altho' death is the consequence.—[Courier.]

On Monday the 29th ult. the inhabitants of Petersburg, in Virginia, and the adjacent country, experienced one of the most destructive rains, accompanied with a violent wind from N. W. that has ever occurred within the memory of the oldest citizen. The rain commenced about 4 o'clock in the morning, and continued with increasing violence till noon, when it began to abate, and about 3 o'clock the storm subsided. From ten to twelve o'clock the water appeared to fall in an almost solid body, filling and overflowing every rivulet over which the clouds passed. Mills, fences, bridges, &c. met one common fate; and the low grounds and meadows presented an appearance unparallelled in the annals of this state. The fall of water was incalculable—and the injury sustained must be very considerable. The damage sustained by the inhabitants of Petersburg, is estimated from 6 to 8000 dollars. [Wash. Fed.]

NASSAU, (N. P.) September 16.

On Sunday last, we were again visited by a very severe gale, more violent than the one we experienced on the 21st of last month. It commenced from the northward, early in the morning, and continued with unabated violence until night, by which time it had shifted round to the southward. The circumstance of its blowing from the northward, fortunately occasioned the shipping in the harbour to be in a measure protected against its fury, by Hog Island, yet the shipping did not escape altogether without injury, and we record the damage sustained by them as far as we have been able to learn. The slaughter house was shattered to pieces by the bowsprit of the ship Ann, belonging to Mr. Richards, which vessel had been cast on shore; the wharfs and abutments along the bay sustained considerable injury, and a number of fences and trees in the town and its vicinity were blown down; we are happy, however, to have it in our power to state, that we have not heard of any lives being lost.

September 19.

By an arrival yesterday from Harbour Island, we learn, they experienced the most severe and disastrous hurricane that ever was known in the memory of the oldest inhabitants there; on the 14th instant it commenced at 5 o'clock in the morning, and continued with increased violence, till about half past 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The brig Two-Brothers, and smack Betsey, belonging to capt. Fisher, sunk in the harbour; but the distress of the inhabitants is deplorable in the extreme.—There are only now standing on the island about 46 houses, and these very much shattered, and no less than 124 totally demolished, exclusive of the barracks and Church, which are razed to the foundation; and what adds to these distressing circumstances, is, that the whole crop on which those people depended is totally destroyed.

At Spanish Wells, we understand, there are only 4 houses standing; and at Boag, on Eleuthera, it is reported a number of people are drowned.

September 23.

Since our last, by an arrival from Eleuthera, we are informed, that the late gale has done extensive damage to the buildings and crops there. The dwelling house of Mr. Benjamin Claxton, at the plantation of Mr. George Butler, was blown down, and we are sorry to relate he was crushed among the ruins; Mrs. Claxton and some others of the family received several severe bruises.

At Royal Island two dwelling houses belonging to Mr. Benjamin Barnett, were blown down; his negro houses and other property also received considerable damage.

BOSTON, October 13.

FROM LISBON.

Captain Doane, who left Lisbon on the 9th of September informs, that earl St. Vincents had arrived there with six sail of the line and two frigates. It was supposed he came for the purpose of protecting the persons and property of the British subjects, in case Portugal was invaded by a French and Spanish army, which was daily expected. Business was dull and freights low. It was rumoured that negotiations for peace were broken off.

FROM CADIZ.

We learn by capt. Tirrell, who left Cadiz on the 1st ult. that there were 12 French and Spanish ships of the line ready for sea; and eight English ships of the line, under admiral Collingwood, off the harbour. It was reported that the invasion of Portugal was contemplated; and that the negotiations between France and England, for peace, had failed.

FROM HAMBURG.

Captain Smith of the Little James, from Hamburg for Boston, spoken at sea, informed, that the French had resolved on the continuance of the war, and would allow no other messengers from England, to land in France.

NEW-YORK, October 15.

LATEST NEWS FROM ENGLAND,

Per the ship Maine, Rossetter, from Bristol.

LONDON, August 27.

The Expeditions.—On Monday, the wind being at E. S. E. the signal was made for getting the fleet at Plymouth under weigh, and every ship have short to her anchor, but by 9 o'clock the wind had shifted again to the S. W. and put a stop to any further proceedings. It is reported that orders have gone from the admiralty, to countermand the sailing of part of them. A number of transports are now assembled in the Downs, waiting for orders.

Quebec Fleet.—We are sorry to state, that the greater part of this fleet has been captured and burnt by a French 80 gun ship (probably Jerome Buonaparte's) in the lat. of 74, long. 30. The fleet consisted of 20 sail, under convoy of the Champion frigate, which has arrived at Portsmouth.

From Holland we learn, that king Louis, by a decree, has not only suppressed one of the Amsterdam papers, the Avond Journal (Evening Herald) but has decided that the unfortunate editor shall not be employed in any periodical work. The reason assigned for this act of authority is the publication of some free remarks upon governments with whom his majesty is at peace. This decree is part of a plan laid down by the French government to strangle, if possible, the freedom of the press in every country in Europe.

The confused accounts from the Neapolitan territories do not enable us to ascertain the extent of the disasters suffered by the enemy in that quarter. It is evident that the whole of the country is in a state of insurrection, and that the French are extremely perplexed by the frequency and diversity of the attacks which are made upon them. Massena is now marching against them with the whole of the French force.

Buonaparte has compiled a catechism for the use of all the churches in his empire.

PORTSMOUTH, August 22.

The hon. D. M. Erskine, minister plenipotentiary to the United States of America, arrived here this afternoon to take passage to America, in the Avon sloop, capt. Starck. Mr. Erskine, by this appointment, vacates his seat in parliament for this borough; sir Thomas Miller, of Froyale, a wealthy and independent gentleman, will be chosen to succeed him.

ALGIERS, June 7.

A camp of eighty thousand men has been sometime assembled under the walls, which broke up last night for Tunis. The artillery and ammunition is to be transported by water. The strictest orders are given to respect French vessels and French property.

The English have lately captured a Genoese vessel, which had a pass signed by the dey and a Algerine ray on board. The dey, who has taken offence at this, has ordered the English agent away, and sent a letter to Malta, whither the captured vessel was brought, to obtain her restoration.

June 18.

A courier from Constantinople, who has likewise brought letters to the dey from persons of importance at Tunis, is just arrived here, and sent back immediately, as it is supposed, to stop the march of the army. A ship of war, which cleared out with ammunition, is returned.

PHILADELPHIA, October 17, 1806.

His Britannic majesty's consul general for the middle and southern states of America, publishes, for the information of merchants and traders whom it doth or may concern, the annexed proclamation issued on the 20th day of August last, by his majesty's lieutenant governor of the island of Jamaica.

P. BOND.

JAMAICA, ss.

By his honour lieutenant general sir Eyre Coote, Knight of the most honourable order of the Bath and of the Crescent, lieutenant governor and commander in chief in and over this his majesty's island of Jamaica, and other the territories thereon depending in America, chancellor and vice-admiral of the same.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS I have thought fit by my proclamation, bearing date the first day of April last, to permit, until the 31st day of December next, the free importation of sheep, hogs, poultry, small live stock of all kinds, fruit and all sorts of fish, flour, corn, cornmeal, bread, rice, peas, beans, and lumber of every description, in vessels belonging to neutral and other states in amity with Great-Britain, upon the like terms, charges and conditions, and subject to the same rules, regulations, visitations and searches, as are observed with respect to British vessels in the like cases; and whereas, the exigency of the case appears to require that the free importation of the several articles therein and herein particularly enumerated should be further permitted until six months' notice be given to the contrary: I do now, therefore, issue this my proclamation, permitting, until six months' notice be given to the contrary, the free importation of sheep, hogs, poultry, small live stock of all kinds, fruit and all sorts of fish, flour, corn, cornmeal, bread, rice, peas, beans, and lumber of every description, in vessels belonging to neutral and other states in amity with Great-Britain, upon the like terms, charges and conditions, and subject to the same rules, regulations, visitations and searches, as are observed with respect to British vessels in the like cases;

And I do hereby permit all vessels, importing the foregoing articles, under the authority of this proclamation, to export from hence, rum and molasses, from any port or ports, place or places, of this island, upon the like terms, stipulations, charges and conditions, as are observed with respect to British vessels in the like cases; and in case any person or persons, importing provisions or lumber into this island, under the authority of this proclamation, shall attempt to introduce any other articles than are herein particularly enumerated, measures will be immediately adopted for the forfeiture of the ship, or vessel and cargo, so contravening the laws of navigation.

Given under my hand and seal at arms, at St. Jago de la Vega, this 20th day of August, in the year of our Lord, 1806, and of his majesty's reign the 46th. E. COOTE.

By his honour's command,

W. CATHCART, Sec'y.

God save the king.

CHARLESTON, September 23.

Extract of a letter, dated Bombay, 18th April, 1806.

"Treaties of peace have lately been concluded between our supreme government and the principal Mahratta chiefs, Scindia and Holkar, which would prove very beneficial to the country, if there was any reliance to be placed on its permanency; but the dispositions of these princes is too well known, and their jealousy of British encroachments too deeply rooted; to suppose they have now come into terms with any other view than present convenience—and there is no doubt but they will re-commence hostilities whenever they conceive an opportunity offers of recovering the territory, or influence they have lost.

"The astonishing progress of Buonaparte has already given considerable alarm here, so much indeed as to have raised apprehensions in some minds, particularly those who are most interested, for the fate of the mother country itself; but though I cannot see the probability of such an event as the subjugation of England by France, or any other nation, yet I must confess, that as soon as the latter can open a communication, by any means, with the native powers in India, there will be great reason to fear for the safety of the British empire in the East.

"A respectable British force continues at Goa, and can immediately take possession, if any information from Europe relative to Portugal, should give a plausible pretext for it."

NORFOLK, October 14.

It was a current report here yesterday, that Monsr. Tureau has made a formal demand on our government of eighty thousand pounds sterling, for the French ship L'Impetüeux lately burnt by the British, within the jurisdiction of the United States! For the truth of this we cannot vouch, but this much is certain, that government have directed commodore Barron, and his brother, captain J. Barron, to survey the situation of the ship when destroyed, and to report accordingly; and that they went from this place yesterday for that purpose.

WASHINGTON CITY, October 17.

By late advices from the Mediterranean, we learn, that war has been declared between the bey of Tunis and the dey of Algiers; occasioned by the refusal of the bey of Tunis to pay the stipulated tribute to Algiers, in which the former is said to be countenanced by the Porte. The bey of Tunis has raised an army of 70,000 men, and the dey of Algiers one of 60,000; the latter with the avowed purpose of attacking Tunis. His troops manifested some repugnance to marching, until they were tempted by the offer of the plunder of the town. No accounts have been received of the meeting of these armies, from which we may expect a bloody combat. The Tunisian cruisers had already entered the harbours of Algiers, and committed considerable depredations; and Algiers had sent out several cruisers to intercept Melli Melli.

BALTIMORE, October 17.

The Washington Federalist, of Wednesday last, says, "Dispatches have been received by government from Mr. Munroe, our minister at the court of London. Their contents have not yet transpired. However, from the cordiality which appears to subsist between the British and our representatives, we may at least augur they are of an agreeable purport."

October 18.

MIRANDA.

Captain Rose, of the schooner Dispatch who arrived at New-York on Wednesday morning, in 18 days from Trinidad, informs that general Miranda had been again at that island—that he received a reinforcement of British officers, and 3 ships of war, and then proceeded to the Main. Two days before capt. R. sailed, dispatches had arrived, announcing, that the expedition had effected a landing on the Main, and that two battles had been fought, in one of which, 400 Spanish soldiers were killed. It is said that the inhabitants of the country were daily flocking in to Miranda's standard; and no doubts were entertained at Trinidad that the expedition would be successful. It is added that general Miranda's brother had been executed and hung in chains.

NEW SONG.

A batchelor leads an easy life,
Few folks that are wed live better;
A man may live well with a very good wife,
But the puzzle is, HOW TO GET HER.

THERE are pretty good wives, and pretty bad wives,
And wives neither one thing nor t'other!
And, as for the wives who scold all their lives,
I'd sooner wed Adam's grandmother.

Then, ladies and gents, if to marriage inclin'd
May deceit or ill humor ne'er trap ye!
May those who are single get mates to their mind,
And those who are married live happy!

Some choose their ladies for taste or for grace,
Or a pretty turn'd foot as they're walking;
Some choose 'em for figure, and some for a face,
But very few choose 'em for talking.

Now, as for the wife I could follow through life,
'Tis she who can speak sincerely;
Who, not over nice, can give good advice,
And love a good husband dearly.

So, ladies and gents, when to wedlock inclin'd,
May deceit or ill humor ne'er trap ye!
May those who are single find wives to their mind,
And those who are married live happy!

Celebrated Gout and Rheumatic Drops;

Sold at Mr. NETH'S store—Price 2 dollars.

A CERTAIN cure for the gout, rheumatism, lumbago, weakness of the joints, and all kinds of sprains—For gleets, be they ever so long standing, and for the stone and gravel, it is perhaps the most active, penetrating and effectual remedy in the world—In the cramp and all pains in the head, face and body, it is without an equal.

This medicine, which justly claims a pre-eminence over all others, as being decidedly adapted for the speedy removal of those complaints above mentioned, owes its discovery to the celebrated Tissot—a physician of most exalted eminence in his profession, and is chiefly the extract of an herb peculiar to Europe, to whose powerfully healing, restorative and balsamic qualities, this great man by the administering owed much of his fame.

MARYLAND GAZETTE.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1806.

Foreign Intelligence.

NEW-YORK, October 23.

At a late hour last night, our boat returned from the West Bank, where the ship Hardware, Law, from Liverpool, had arrived. By this arrival the editors of the New-York Gazette have it in their power to present their readers with important news, as late from London as the 3d ultimo.

THE Hardware left Liverpool, on the 4th and ſailed from the Rock on the 6th September—at which time, captain Law ſays, it was currently reported, that Mr. Fox was dead, and that lord Lauderdale was on his return to England, the negotiations for peace having been broken off.

The London papers ſtate, that

The laſt Hamburg mail brought accounts that Pruſſia had aſſumed a warlike attitude, and her armies are every where in motion. All abſent generals have been ordered to Berlin, to receive their ſeveral commands. The rapacity of France is the cauſe aſſigned for theſe preparations. Buonaparte, it is ſaid, has demanded the ceſſion of Eaſt Frieſland, Embden, and ſome other little corners of Pruſſia, to give them to the new king of Holland, and has ſent his army to carry his views into effect.

It was confidently aſſerted, that the Ruſſian negotiator, M. D'Oubril, has been completely duped by Talleyrand. He was made to believe that the treaty with England was ready to be ſigned, and that any delay on his part, in ſigning the preliminary treaty for Ruſſia, would be ſacrificing the intereſts of his maſter. Within a few hours after he had ſigned the treaty, he diſcerned he had been impoſed upon, which was the cauſe of his ſetting off ſo precipitately from Paris for St. Peterſburg.

The emperor Alexander is ſaid to be ſtill favourable to Great-Britain. He has an army of 500,000 men; and there appeared to be ſome foundation for the report of a northern confederacy.

The London Gazette of the 27th of Auguſt, mentions the appointment of lords Holland and Aukland, "joint commiſſioners and plenipotentiaries for arranging and finally ſettling the ſeveral matters in diſcuſſion between his majeſty's government and the government of the United States, with James Munroe and William Pinkney, eſqs. the commiſſioners appointed for ſimilar purpoſes on the part of the United States;" and the hon. William Frederick Elliot Eden to be ſecretary and John Allen, eſq. aſſiſtant ſecretary to the commiſſion.

LONDON, September 5.

Contrary to all expectation and probability, no meſſenger has yet arrived from France.

It is reported, upon the authority of a private letter from Gibraltar, that the army of Maſſena had been defeated in Calabria, by the Britiſh forces and Calabrian lawyaliſts, who fought with great courage.

The homeward bound Eaſt-India fleet of 13 ſail, have arrived at Portſmouth.

The letters brought by the Liſbon mail, ſtate, that the Portugueſe are much alarmed at the ſquadron of earl St. Vincent, now lying at the Tagus, particularly as tranſports with troops were expected to arrive from England. None of the royal family of Portugal, nor the ſecretary of ſtate, have been ſeen ſince the arrival of this force.

September, 1.

Yeſterday, Mr. Fox was tapped a ſecond time; about 14 quarts of fœtid water was taken from him.

PHILADELPHIA, October 23.

The ſhip Ocean, capt. Girdon, in 33 days from Bourdeaux, has arrived below. She ſailed from Bourdeaux the 11th Sept. and from the Cordovan the 17th ult. The verbal information furniſhed by capt. Girdon is, that the emperor of Ruſſia had refuſed to ratify the treaty negotiated at Paris by his miniſter D'Oubril; a meaſure, which it is preſumed, will have an important effect on the relations of Europe.

On the 11th Sept. bets at Bourdeaux were even, that lord Lauderdale had left Paris, without effecting the object of his miſſion. We ſhall be able to give ſome details in our next.

October 24.

LATEST FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Yeſterday arrived the ſhip Ocean, capt. Girdon, in 33 days from Bourdeaux, by the politeneſs and attention of whom, we are furniſhed with Paris papers to the 6th and Bourdeaux to the 11th, inclusive, which furniſh the following tranſlations, and no doubt, will enable us to give more in our next.

LEIPSICK, Auguſt 23.

Letters from Dreſden, ſtate, that the duke of Saxe Weimar had ſuddenly arrived at Tœplitz, in order to conſer with the elector on ſeveral political objects.

The publication of the Akaſe, which orders the extraordinary levies in the Ruſſian, empire in order to carry the army to 500,000 men, has given riſe to ſeveral new calculations on the military forces of the four great military powers of the European continent, ſuch as they were conſidered before the treaty of Preſburg. A juſtly eſteemed writer, has given the following ſtatement of them:

	Infantry,	Cavalry,	Total.
France	516,000	88,000	604,000
Ruſſia	340,000	62,000	402,000
Pruſſia	232,000	44,000	206,000
Auſtria	170,000	40,000	210,000

The author obſerves, that with regard to France, he has only valued the troops purely French; for that in comprehending thoſe in the Federative ſtates, the forces of that empire will amount to upwards of 820,000 men. With regard to Auſtria, her army far from being recruited ſince the war, has even been diminiſhed by diſmiſſals. Before the campaign of 1805, it was eſtimated at 385,000 fighting men.

HAMBURG, Auguſt 25.

The Pruſſians have quitted the mouth of the Elbe and Weſer; the Province of Lauenburg is reſtored to the Swedes, by which ceſſion the king of Sweden has obtained every thing he wiſhed for. Time will explain this phenomenon.

Auguſt 27.

The late accounts from Swediſh Pomerania and Berlin, confirm the news of raiſing the blockade of the Pruſſian ports by the Swedes; and of the marching of ſix battalions of huſſars, with the artillery for Lauenburg.

For ſometime paſt, a number of French and Ruſſian Couriers have paſſed through Berlin.

It is reported at Berlin, that general Knobelſdorf, is to be ſent to Paris, as envoy extraordinary and miniſter plenipotentiary. The exchanging of couriers between Berlin and St. Peterſburg, is very active.

PARIS, September 5.

Mr. Ruffin, chancellor of the French conſulate in in Ruſſia, arrived yeſterday from Peterſburg, and brings intelligence, that in conſequence of a change of miniſters, the effect of the new principles adopted by the Ruſſian government, and the extraordinary influence which the Engliſh party has obtained over the new cabinet, the treaty of the 20th of July has not been ratified.

Thus hoſtilities between France and Ruſſia are about to recommence. The conquerors at Ulm and Auſterlitz are again aſſembled under their ſtandards, and approach the field of their triumphs. More powerful in numbers, more formidable than ever, by that organization which has never been equalled; they wait with impatience the impulſe of the great ſoul which animates them.

However, nothing can induce us to preſume, that a general continental war will be renewed.

In every event the emperor, as well as the French people, are prepared for all chances, and the armies of his majeſty will be found wherever it ſhall be neceſſary to combat for a durable and glorious peace.

September 6.

The treaty of peace between France and Ruſſia has not been ratified by the emperor Alexander. It would be difficult to find out a plauſible reaſon in the laws of public or private mortality, for this ſtrange refuſal. We ſee no pretext, nor even any ſubterfuge for ill faith. It cannot be alleged that the Ruſſian plenipotentiary ſtepped beyond his authority. Never were powers more unlimitted given, nor was there ever a promiſe to ratify a treaty more formal or more poſitive. A conſtant intelligence was remarked in the courſe of the negotiations between the courts of St. Peterſburg and London, to advance, delay or break them off. The moment the treaty was ſigned, Mr. D'Oubril ſent a courier publicly to London, to inform the Ruſſian ambaſſador of what had juſt taken place. But this might be conſidered as the premature notification of a treaty which the imperial word naturally held out as ratified. In theſe circumſtances, Ruſſia made extraordinary levies; England it was well known, was preparing expeditions; but ſtill upon the imperial word, it was natural to believe that the treaty would be ratified; and the emperor Napoleon gave ſo far this teſtimony of confidence in the good faith of the emperor of Ruſſia, that he directly iſſued orders for the ceſſation of all hoſtilities. This generous precipitancy reminds us of the ſending back of the Ruſſian priſoners of Paul I. and of thoſe ſent back to his ſon laſt campaign; this continuation of generoſity forms a ſingular contraſt to the perſeverance of hoſtile ſentiments which the emperors of Ruſſia obſerve towards the emperor of the French, and would alone ſuffice to mark the difference of their cauſes.

The emperor Alexander may openly ſet forth the new grievances he has againſt France. Faithful to the principles of the treaty of Preſburg, ſhe has only completed its execution. The organization of the Germanic confederation was its inevitable conſequence; it conſecrated the independence of the ſtates which compoſe it, irrevocably regulated their regulations, and put them in harmony with their intereſts. This aſſociation has been long foreſeen and called for, as eſſential to the future repoſe of Europe.—The communications made in this reſpect between the members of the Germanic body had commenced ſeveral months prior to Mr. D'Oubril's miſſion to Paris. The pact was made known previous to the ſignature of the treaty of peace, and France was in the ſame attitude; ſhe alone had a right to complain that a Ruſſian diviſion perſiſted in the occupation of a neutral territory.

For want of plauſible reaſons, we may ſeek for the ſecret motive of this rupture—we ſhall find it, however, to be no more dictated by the intereſts of Ruſſia, than it is by the laws of honour and juſtice.

For theſe fifteen years paſt, a war has been carried on againſt France, which has indeed often changed its name or its pretext; but the conſtant aim of which has been to lower or deſtroy the French power. However, the obſtacles ſet againſt her have only ſerved as ſteps to her elevation; the fate of arms has left no other bounds to her preponderance than her own moderation; and ſuch has been her fortune, that the moſt obſtinate of her enemies ſaw peace as the only means of ſtopping the flight ſhe had taken. At the time of the organization of the new miniſtry, there appeared under their auſpices at London, a work in which this opinion was laid down in a ſpirit which announced perhaps leſs the deſire than the neceſſity of making peace. Whilſt the author reproached the former miniſters with their inconſiſtency, their precipitation, their coalitions ill-formed and ill-conducted, he conſidered peace as the beſt means of one day attacking France with ſucceſs, of extinguiſhing by degrees her military ſpirit, of ruining the alliances and repairing the loſſes of her allies, of concerting more feaſible deſigns, and of waiting for more favourable occaſions. The Morning Chronicle of the 21ſt and 22d, following the ſame principles, does not fear to affirm that no power is now able to attack the proſperity of France, and adviſes her enemies to adjourn their reſentment. Thus, according to the moſt moderate writers, the Engliſh government would never ſee any thing in peace but a means of more advantageouſly making war. The negotiations they open would be ſnares, the olive branch they hold out a poiſon.—Under ſuch circumſtances, with ſuch enemies, France owes thanks to him who, penetrating their deſigns, has found means to ſecure himſelf againſt them. But from the fatality ever attached to their plots, after revealing their ſecrets, they have again betrayed their cauſe. Their poſition is not more favourable than at the end of the laſt war.

They have neither more ſkilful generals, better exerciſed ſoldiers, nor better concerted deſigns. If they again find allies on the continent, they devote them to certain ruin. The emperor Napoleon has read their thoughts; he has known how to avail himſelf of the advantage of his victory; he has been obliged to keep his military attitude; and happily for the future tranquillity of Europe, thoſe who wiſh only for truces, thoſe who waited for his ſleep, and can keep neither their word nor their treaties, will find him ſtill more formidable than in the plains of Auſterlitz.

Mr. Erſkine, ſon of the lord Chancellor, and the miniſter from England, is a young gentleman of amiable and reſpectable character and warmly attached to the United States—He married about 7 years ago the daughter of gen. Cadwallader, of Pennſylvania, one of the patriots of 1776, and who fell in his country's defence. By this marriage Mr. E. has a daughter whom he left in Philadelphia, (when he returned to England ſome years ago) with her grandmother, Mrs. Cadwallader, the generals widow. Mr. Erſkine's father, the lord Chancellor is known to entertain, and to expreſs upon all occaſions, "the moſt partial ſentiments towards this country, and to have veſted a conſiderable portion of his property in the American funds." The ſending out Mr. Erſkine to the United States, in the character he now fills, is the ſtrongeſt proof of the ſincere diſpoſition of the Britiſh government to cultivate a laſting friendſhip with the United States, and is a happy preſage of that future union of political intereſts, ſo neceſſary to ſtem the torrent which now deſolates the world; although we deprecate any permanent alliance with Great-Britain, yet we are perſuaded that a good underſtanding between Great-Britain and the United States can alone ſave both from a participation in that ruin and degradation which is rapidly ſpreading towards them.

By our French papers, it appears that Jerome Buonaparte had arrived at Concarneau, and entered the Bay of the Forest on the 26th August, in the Veteran. On the 15th August, he fell in with the Quebec fleet, consisting of 16 sail, convoyed by two frigates, took 9 of them valued at 5 millions, burnt them, and put the hands on board of American vessels. During a cruise of nine months, the fleet destroyed upwards of 200 English merchantmen. [Phil. pap.]

A Paris paper mentions, that on the 14th of August, an English fleet, under the command of lord St. Vincent, had entered the harbour of Lisbon, and that the Spanish Ambassador and the French Charge des Affaires had demanded of the cabinet of Lisbon an explanation of this unexpected event, and it was expected they would leave the city, if they did not receive a satisfactory answer. [ibid.]

From the Massachusetts Spy.

Mr. THOMAS,

I send you the following extract for republication.—It originally appeared in a South-Carolina paper of September, 1798, as an extract of a letter from gen. Buonaparte at Toulon, to an American at Bourdeaux, and was supposed to be authentic.

The former sentiments of that extraordinary man will amuse the speculative, and his remarks on the American Republic cannot but be peculiarly interesting. The reader will form his own opinion how far his anticipation of the fate of our Colossus is realized; and how true of the consequences of its fall.

THE EXTRACT.

"You soon depart for the western, and I for the eastern hemisphere. A new career of action is opened before me, and I hope to unite my name with new and great events, and with the unrivalled greatness of the republic; you go to unite yourself, once more, with a people among whom I behold, at once, the simple ages of Rome, and the luxury of her decline; where I see the taste, the sensibility and the science of Athens, with her factions, and the valour of Sparta, without her discipline.

"As a citizen of the world I would address your country in the following language: Every man and nation is ambitious; ambition grows with power as the blaze of the vertical sun is all spirit—strengthen your political institution—remember that armies and navies are of the same use in the world, as the police in London or Paris, and soldiers are not made like a potter's vessel in a minute.

"Cultivate union, or your empire will be but a Colossus of gold fallen on the earth, broken in pieces, and the prey of foreign and domestic Saracens. If you are wise, your republic will be permanent; and perhaps Washington will be hailed as the founder of the glorious and happy empire, when the name of Buonaparte shall be obscured by succeeding revolutions."

Extract of a letter from a clergyman at Mill Creek, Pennsylvania, to a gentleman in Brunswick, (N. J.) dated September 18.

You will probably be anxious to hear some accounts from our mission Sandusky—I can assure you that the prospects are more and more flattering. We have intelligence from the Rev. Joseph Badger, who is at present a missionary among them, that he arrived there in time to prevent a horrid massacre of the Squaws, whom a pretended prophet had pointed out as witches. They were to have been burnt on the night after Mr. Badger arrived—But he hastened to the spot, spoke to the chiefs and pointed out the evil of such conduct.—This had the desired effect, for he was made an instrument in the hand of Providence not only to prevent the bloody scene, but to convince the chiefs that these prophets were impostors. He was received with cordiality and friendship. The chiefs went with him to shew him where he might build, commanded their people to attend to his ministry, and forbid them to hear the prophet any more. Mr. Badger took with him farming utensils, a yoke of oxen, an horse and a cow, and materials for keeping house. He was accompanied by a young married couple, besides another young man to labour, and a schoolmaster, all reputed pious. They have planted 20 acres of Indian corn for the Indians and 5 acres for themselves. Mr. Badger writes that he expects a large school of children in a short time—and that a considerable number of families expect to move in from upper Sandusky, from Honey creek, and other places, next Spring, for convenience to attend the Gospel, so that he expects in time a large congregation of Indians will be formed—That the Indians are very attentive to his preaching, and a few appear serious—In short, he appears in great spirits, and declares that the prospects are flattering equal to, or even beyond his most sanguine expectations. The missionary spirit is great in this country and the people liberal in their donations for the purpose, some giving even beyond their ability.

BASSETERRE, (St. Kitts) August 29.

Unparallelled Murder, aggravated by Suicide!

We have to record one of the most horrid scenes that ever appeared in the annals of this or any former country—a scene too dreadful for imagination to conceive—too unnatural for posterity to credit!—In which the weakness of Human reasoning is totally absorbed in the dreadful result of the most mature deliberation; the public mind is still in such a state of agitation from the enormity of the transaction that we know not when it will regain its wanted tranquillity. Mr. Francis Constable! a man naturally of a gloomy habit, but whose probity and placid manners for several years past, had gained him the respect and esteem of the inhabitants of this island, in which he has long resided, has defaced all his good qualities, and will make HORROR accompany the mention and recollection of his name by this last and most dreadful act of his life—THE DELIBERATE AND CRUEL MURDER OF HIS FOUR INFANT CHILDREN; adding thereto the still more hideous act of suicide, by putting a period to his own miserable existence by a large dose of laudanum. But, to descend to particulars, as far as they have reached us; Mr. C. quitted his store on Wednesday afternoon, and went home in as apparent composure, as he had ever been. He, however, in the course of the evening, evinced some degree of restlessness, and impatiently desired the mother of his three coloured children to put them all to bed (including a fine boy of about 14 years of age, his only son by his late wife:) soon after this was complied with, the woman herself retired, and he remained in the hall preparing for the execution of his diabolical purpose, which was too fatally accomplished in the following manner, after one of his intended victims had escaped:—When the stillness of night made him believe his woman and children were fast asleep, he silently crept into the chamber, and began the work of Death, by an attempt to strangle the unsuspecting mother, hoping, by giving her at the same instant, a violent blow on the temple with a bootjack, to render her incapable of resistance. Fortunately the blow had not the desired effect, but alarmed her so much, that she struggled from the grasp he had on her throat, and escaped through the window to call in the neighbours. Another woman (her relation) in the house, awaked by the noise, and equally alarmed at what she saw, made her escape the same way, when Mr. C. deliberately shutting himself closely in, began the horrid tragedy. Having previously prepared cords, he put one round the neck of each sleeping infant, and it must be presumed, that, finding he could not effectually strangle them, he must have held them up, suspended in one hand, while, with the other, (horrid to relate!) he gave them repeated stabs about the body, with a pistol having a spring bayonet. The youngest (a fine girl not three months old) having one slight mark of the weapon on its left pap, no doubt the tightness of the cord had soon finished his purpose with her. His son, and the two other girls, had seven or eight stabs, many of which were mortal, and, it is also supposed, from his left hand being much bruised and covered with blood, that he did not effectuate his purpose with the bigger children without considerable difficulty—in fact, one was said to have been overheard remonstrating and endeavouring to avert the purpose of this cruel father. After the woman had got out, the cry of "MURDER" resounded through the neighbourhood, and along the whole street, but did not meet for sometime with due attention, for, who could credit the tale, that a father (particularly so affectionate a one as Mr. C. had ever been) was inhumanly butchering his own children? Nature forbade it!—By dint of perseverance, however, a few at length gave ear to it, and Mr. Adlam, sen. Mr. Moore, Mr. Bambery Mr. Popplewell, Mr. Brownhill, (Mr. C's. clerk,) and others, came to the house. The former gentleman called to Mr. C. requested he would open the door, as he had some business to transact with him. The wretched man replied with calm composure, and as if in the act of hushing one of the children to sleep, that that was no time for business, and that if he had any business to settle with him to call in the morning, at the same time disclaiming all occasion to use Mr. Adlam's reiterated offers of service, if he could render any.

The door being at length forced, he was seen lying on the floor, huddled up; from which position, however, he immediately arose, seemingly alarmed, and approached those who had entered, ordering them repeatedly to quit the house—Seeing him stagger, Mr. Adlam and Mr. Brownhill seized each an arm, and one saying Good God Constable what have you done? (not knowing, at the time, of the horrid transaction in the adjoining room;) he coolly replied, Well, can you help it? and then endeavoured to draw them near a table, on which (when the candle was raised) the fatal instrument of death was seen, and immediately secured. He was then led to the sopha, where being laid, he almost instantaneously fell asleep—To WAKE NO MORE!—On carrying the candle into the chamber, what a scene presented itself! Four hapless infants weltering in their blood! three of them already dead, and the eldest girl who just lived long enough to be removed into the next room, say she was dying, and ask for some water, when she joined her murdered brothers and sisters! Assistance was procured for the wretched father, but happily assistance was in vain—he lived in convulsive agony till half past 8 yesterday morning, when he expired a horrid spectacle to behold, as some of the by-standers who were present at the awful moment of his entering a dreadful eternity, declare that he had more the ghastly appearance of a Demon, than a fellow-man! A coroner's inquest was held on the bodies of the unfortunate infants, and the verdict returned was of course murdered by the hands of Mr. Francis Constable. When the inquest was held on the body of this wretched man, the dreadful verdict of self murder was returned. Two papers were produced in evidence, one purporting to be a letter dated the 21st of August, addressed to Thomas Pemberton and Richard Priddle, Esquires, wherein he names them trustees of a deed executed on the 16th of August.—The other apparently intended as a justification of his conduct in this last act, and is as follows:

"POOR, wretched creature! what hast thou brought thyself and that poor unfortunate boy* to!

"When I reflect on the happy situation I once was in, and look now to what I am reduced to, life becomes a burthen;—not the most distant hope or prospect of ever getting forward. As I must fall, I had better give up while I can pay every one honestly their own, and not by delay injure those that might repose confidence in me.

"My poor unfortunate boy! my heart bleeds to see the misery I have brought you to! this drives me to melancholy, despair and madness. Let us leave the world, my poor fellow! before you know the state you are reduced to.

"My poor dear† child, I don't regret the little settlement that is made on you: I wish it had been more. Had it remained in the hands of your father, it would have been wasted away, and you would be unprovided for. Your unhappy father feels for the pain it must give you to hear of his horrid and tragical end, and that of your poor brother. Forgive me, my dear child, though your sufferings will be great; I have not fortitude to bear up any longer!

"You, other poor‡ unfortunates! I have been the means of your coming into the world: I have not the means to leave you support—the poor woman, your mother, has neither abilities or industry to provide for you. Shall I leave you to perish on the face of the earth! No! it cannot be!

"Pity the poor wretch who was drove to this by melancholy and despair! He was not actuated by malice, anger, hatred or revenge, but pity to the poor unfortunates who would have been left to want and misery!

"I forgive every one, and beg forgiveness of any that I may have unknowingly injured.

"Put the poor unfortunates into the grave with decency, as soon as it can be lawfully done, that the horrid scene may be closed from the world.

What a pernicious system has this poor weak mental unfortunately formed for himself! What a direct contrast to the seeming meekness of the last few years of his life! If he had any (the most distant) sense of religion, what must have been his idea, at the moment he wrote (what he considered) his justification? Hapless Man!—or at the moment when he gave the first stab to his unfortunate child? His murdered infants were carried together, in one hearse, to their graves, calling forth the sympathetic tears for their premature fate as it passed; while the remains of their unpitied parent were interred on a part of his land in New-Town.

Shell-Caſtle, September 29.

o'clock laſt evening, a gale at E. N. E. nd increaſed in its violence until abou

4, A. M. when it ſhifted to the E. S. E. and blew the moſt tremendous ſtorm ever, I believe, witneſſed by a human being, until 6 o'clock, when it got further to the ſouthward, and finally to W. S. W. where it ſtill continues to blow with exceſſive force. The cutter, belonging to this ſtation, under the command of captain Henderſon, upſet and ſunk at her anchors. He, thank God, with five of the crew, are ſaved; three poor fellows belonging to her are loſt; their names are Frederick Cherry, Jacob, (a Ruſſian,) and J. G. Roman.

Nearly all the lighters of the navigation are ſunk, aſhore, or diſmaſted. In Wallac's channel, the ſhip——, captain M Keel, of Waſhington, main and mizenmaſt gone aſhore; the ſhip Cornelia, Canon, of Waſhington, aſhore; the ſch'r——, Bracket, maſter, belonging to Meſſrs. Marſhes, of Waſhington, aſhore and ſunk; a ſchooner, belonging to Mr. Eborn, of Waſhington, diſmaſted, aſhore and ſunk; ſchooner Mount Vernon, Fiſher, of Newbern, loſt entirely, but it is believed no lives loſt; a ſmall ſloop, which arrived laſt evening from Jamaica, with rum, name unknown yet, upſet on the eaſt point of Beacon iſland, the people are now ſeen on her bottom, and there is ſome proſpect of them and the cargo being ſaved; ſch'r Horizon, Jerkins, ſtill at anchor above the Swaſh, mainmaſt cut away; ſloop Union, Keais, aſhore, diſmaſted. In ſhort, but one veſſel in the whole navigation afloat and all ſtanding, and that a ſingular inſtance of preſervation: it is a lighter belonging to Mr. James Jones, of Newbern, who ſtruck adrift with two of her anchors a head, at the caſtle, and drifted two and a half miles to the Royal Shoal, where ſhe brought up and rode out the ſtorm; only one ſmall black boy on board.

I have now to add to the tale of deſtruction, the total loſs of the immenſely valuable philoſophical and mathematical inſtruments of col. Tatham's he yeſterday put them on board the Governor Williams for the purpoſe of having them conveyed to Newbern, and they are now buried with her, in two fathoms water: Although there is no doubt but captain Henderſon will be able to get her up, yet we fear all the apparatus will be totally ruined—a loſs which while it may be ruinous to the colonel, is to be ſincerely deplored by the lovers of ſcience.

Deſcription cannot paint, nor imagination conceive, the force of the ſea; it was impetuous, and irreſiſtible; it ſtruck and on ſtriking deluged, or diſmaſted the unoppoſing victim of its mighty power.

During the gale the oil in the light in the lamp of the beacon took fire, and blew out 36 pains of glaſs—the light of courſe will not be in operation for ſome days to come.

We are happy to learn from col. Tatham, who arrived in town yeſterday, that his loſs ſtated in the above communication, does not include his philoſophical apparatus, which was chiefly left in Virginia and ſent up to Newbern before the ſtorms commenced; His works for public account, a valuable aſſortment of inſtruments, books, papers and cloathing are, however, ſunk in the cutter, and cannot be replaced.

They viſited the Pacific Ocean, which they left on the 27th of March laſt. They would have been here about the 1ſt of Auguſt, but for the detention they met with from ſnow and froſt in croſſing mountains on which are eternal ſnows. Their journal will no doubt be not only importantly intereſting to us all, but a fortune for the worthy and laudable adventurers. When they arrived, 3 cheers were fired. They really have the appearance of Robinſon Cruſoes—dreſſed entirely in Buckſkins. We ſhall know all very ſoon—I have had no particulars yet."

TO THE MORNING STAR.

BY PAUL ALLEN, ESQ.

RISE on the front of Heav'n, thou brilliant Star!
Child of the morn, with ev'ry beauty crown'd;
Look down, all glorious, from thy ſplendid car,
And ſhoot thy beams like ſilver threads around.

Bright orb, beneath thy calm, protecting light,
Oft have I ſought the heav'n-reflecting rill,
The lofty mountain, riſing in his might,
Or the ſwift torrent daſhing down the hill.

Then would the ſoaring lark triumphant riſe,
On ſome bright cloud to reſt his weary wing;
And ere the morn's deep purple ting'd the ſkies,
With his wild notes would ſoothe the ear of Spring.

But Spring, with all her thouſand charms refin'd,
No ſteady ray of pleaſure can impart,
To eaſe the throbbings of an anxious mind,
When ſick deſpair fits cold upon the heart.

Yet ever-waking memory ſtill purſues
Thoſe better days when Hope my hours beguil'd;
When to my fancy's all-enraptur'd views,
Spring dawn'd more bright, as fair Florella ſmil'd.

But now that day-ſtar of my life has ſet,
And all my active energies are dead,
While that ſtern tyrant of my ſoul, Regret,
Winds the ſad willow round my drooping head.

Sweet Poeſy! an magic fiction dreſt,
No more I court thy charms; I break thy ſpell;
Thou dear conſoler of the human breaſt,
Receive my fond adieu, my laſt farewell.

A CERTAIN cure for the gout, rheumatiſm, lumbago, weakneſs of the joints, and all kinds of ſprains—For gleets, be they ever ſo long ſtanding, and for the ſtone and gravel, it is perhaps the moſt active, penetrating and effectual remedy in the world—In the cramp and all pains in the head, face and body, it is without an equal.

This medicine, which juſtly claims a pre-eminence over all others, as being decidedly adapted for the ſpeedy removal of thoſe complaints above mentioned, owes its diſcovery to the celebrated Tiſſot—a phyſician of moſt exalted eminence in his profeſſion, and is chiefly the extract of an herb peculiar to Europe, to whoſe powerfully healing, reſtorative and balſamic qualities, this great man by the adminiſtering owed much of his fame.

From the above ſcheme, it appears that there are not two blanks to a prize; and that the prizes are to be paid without deduction. The advantages offered to adventurers, and the object to which the money is principally to be applied, the managers hope will procuce ſuch a ſpeedy ſale of the tickets as may enable them to commence the drawing at an early day. All prizes will be paid within ſixty days from the completion of the drawing; and ſuch as may not be demanded within twelve months after will be conſidered as generous donations to the objects of the lottery. Bond has been given to the amount of 50,000 dollars, to the mayor and city council, for the faithful performance of its conditions.

Tickets may be had of the managers, and of ſuch other perſons as they may appoint; and prizes in the Cathedral and Second Preſbyterian Church Lotteries will be received in payment.
